The Air Training Command

BY LT. GEN. ROBERT W. HARPER, USAF
Commander

IN the United States Air Force, as in industry, it has been found that there is no substitute for formal instruction at functional schools. The huge task of training Air Force personnel falls on the Air Training Command, largest single command in the Air Force.

From its headquarters at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., the ATRC stretches across the country from east to west, north to south. Its 42 bases conduct training courses which run the gamut from cooks and bakers to qualified jet pilots.

Lt. Gen. Harper

With the exception of schools of the Air University, all formalized individual training in the Air Force for everyone from the newest and youngest airmen to seasoned general officers is the responsibility of the Training Command.

In order to keep a close control over the training, ATRC is divided into three Training Air Forces. The Technical Training Air Force is under the command of Maj. Gen. Eugene L. Eubank, with headquarters at Gulfport, Miss. It operates seven large technical schools, two basic military training schools, and one Air Defense School.

Waco, Texas, is the headquarters of the Flying Training Air Force. Under the command of Maj. Gen. Gabriel Disosway, FTAF supervises the operation of 24 flying schools. These schools take the raw aviation cadet through his training until he earns his coveted silver wings.

The Crew Training Air Force, under the command of Maj. Gen. Charles F. Born, has its headquarters at Randolph Air Force Base, Tex., and operates eight combat crew schools. It is in these schools that the graduate pilot is molded into an efficient crew member ready for combat.

MAY WATER-COOL DECKS AGAINST JET HEAT

The Navy is studying a system of water-cooled decks for its carriers to combat jet plane exhaust heat.

The disclosure was made by Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air James H. Smith, Jr., at a meeting of the Aviation Writers Association in Miami, Fla., last week.

Spokesmen at the Bureau of Ships this week declined to supply details about the study. They would say only that the hot blasts from jet airplane exhausts cause portions of carrier decks "to become overheated during intense operations" and that the Bureau "is currently developing methods to cool the decks."

Uniform Decision Expected Shortly

The Army late this week was awaiting final go-ahead from Capitol Hill on the proposed green uniform.

The new garb has won Congressional plaudits from both Armed Services Committees and the House Appropriations Committee. Yet to be heard from, however, is the Senate Appropriations Committee.

This group is expected to make its decision shortly—possibly next week. If the outcome is favorable, the Army will forthwith issue preliminary procedures for purchase and wearing the new uniform.

Best information is that commercial purchase of the Army Green on an optional basis will be authorized beginning early in 1955; it's possible, however, that men assigned to recruiting duty may wear the new uniform before that date.

AF Twice-Month Pay Cited by Secretary

The Air Force soon may pay officers and airmen twice a month. The matter is now the subject of a field survey.

An indication that the proposal has won favorable support at the highest Air Force level came in a speech this week by Secretary Harold E. Talbott. He told the graduation class at the Industrial College that Air Force personnel want to be paid twice a month.

Secretary Talbott has been driving hard to raise reenlistments by promoting career attractiveness. If airmen want to be paid twice a month, there appears to be a good chance he will see that it's done.

An Army spokesman said that Service is not now considering twice-a-month pay. The Navy and Marine Corps pay on a semi-monthly basis.

SERVICES IN FOR CONFUSING SALUTING

The salute has gotten out of hand at the Pentagon.

Notwithstanding the heavy emphasis on Defense Department teamwork, the Army has decided to go it alone in ordering a return effective 1 Sept. to off-post saluting (details on back page).

The Air Force says it has no current plan to take similar action. "Airmen are encouraged to salute off-base, but there is no requirement that they do so, nor is such an order anticipated at this time," an Air Force spokesman commented.

The Navy and Marine Corps also "encourage" off-ship or off-base saluting, but it's not mandatory unless an individual commanding officer issues an order, which he is authorized to do. Apparently, some do; some don't.

This Service individualism means that come 1 Sept., unless the Defense Department steps in smartly and says saluting must be standardized, a situation will be possible in which a soldier, airman, sailor and marine, walking together on a downtown street, respectively would (1) be required to salute; (2) not be required to salute; or (3&4) be required or not be required to salute, at the approach of an officer—say a lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard.

Army Reorganization Wins Belated Approval As SecDef Wilson O.K.'s Two New Billets

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has approved—following a six months delay—reorganization of the Army.

The new plan will be announced officially in a matter of days, barring a last minute reversal.

It provides for establishment of a four-star Continental Command to replace the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces and creation of a new three-star billet, subject to Presidential endorsement, for a Deputy Chief of Staff for Supply.

Secretary Wilson also has given the green-light to numerous lesser changes in Army organization. These include:

- Shifting the Office of Legislative Liaison and Chief of Information from the Chief of Staff to direct control of the Secretary of the Army.

- Emphasizing the direct responsibility to the Chief of Staff of the Inspector General.

- Changing the title of the Army's top civilian legal authority, now Mr. John S.

'UNIFIED' TREE CLIMBING

Loftily emphasizing that it will stand for no monkeyshines in the campaign to standardize Armed Forces procurement in order to promote efficiency and save millions of dollars annually, the Defense Department has disclosed a new bearing success.

The Pentagon, after high-level study, has cut from 40 to 1 the different kinds of Tree and Pole Climbers which the Services may put under repetitive procurement.

Adams, from Department Counsellor to General Counsel.

- Placing military staff activities under one of the four Assistant Secretaries of the Army, proposed in pending legislation.

- Continuing a military officer as Army Comptroller, a proposal which at one time did not enjoy support of the Defense Secretary, but on which there has been an apparent change of mind.

Mr. Wilson gave consideration of the latest version of the Army Reorganization (Please turn to Page 1285)

Marine Corps Will Get Its First Seal At White House Ceremony Next Week

For the first time in its 178 year history, the Marine Corps will have an official seal.

At a White House ceremony scheduled for 22 June President Eisenhower will sign an Executive Order authorizing use of the new seal. General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps, who assisted the Defense Department's Heraldic Branch in designing the emblem, will be in attendance at the ceremony along with Brig. Gen. Joseph C. Burger, USMC, Director, Division of Reserves, Col. Raymond F. Crist, USMC, Director of Marine Corps Public Information, and Capt. Harry D. Elms, USMC, who is a member of the Marine Corps' Permanent Uniform Board. High ranking Navy and Defense Department officials will also be present at the historic signing.

Work on the seal has been in progress for about two years and at least a dozen (Please turn to Page 1285)

SENATE INCREASES SCHOOL ALLOWANCE

An increased allowance for education of school-age dependents of Service personnel has been approved by the Senate.

The House approved an allowance of $225 per student but the Defense Department said this is $20 less than the "actual average cost," and asked the Senate to boost the amount to $250.

The Appropriations Committee took an in-between stand and increased the allowance from $225 to $237.50. This was accepted by the Senate.

Information presented by the Department of Defense, the Committee said, "shows that in some instances the cost of operating schools for dependents overseas exceeds the limitation" provided in the appropriations bill; "that these costs result from requirements to operate small schools in areas where the number of military personnel is small and the cost per pupil correspondingly high and, also, from the situation where the number of military personnel stationed in a given location is so small as to not warrant the operation of any school and the only facilities available are high-priced private schools."

The Committee said it believes "the Services should continue to consolidate small schools wherever possible and use great care in the selection of those personnel for overseas duty who have a minimum number of school-age dependents."

The increase approved by the Senate would apply to primary and secondary schooling for dependents of both "military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense residing on military or naval installations or stationed in foreign countries."

Navy Expands A-Sub Program Following New Tests With Land Based Prototype

The Navy's fiscal '55 shipbuilding program has been revamped to include two atomic submarines, according to Senator Styles Bridges (R-N.H.), who revealed this week that "new emphasis" has been placed on development of nuclear-powered overseas craft.

The Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman said he is "pleased with the Navy Department's plan to add another atomic submarine to our fighting fleet."

One A-sub, the USS Nautilus, has been launched and will be placed in operation before the end of the year. Another, the Sea Wolf, is under construction.

Original shipbuilding plans for the coming fiscal year included one nuclear-sub (a smaller vessel than the first two) and two conventional submarines. This plan has now been changed and approved by the Senate late this week to include two A-subs and one conventional type.

In a letter to Senator Bridges, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said "It is important that we expand the base for construction of nuclear-powered submarines in order to meet the anticipated demand for this type craft in the near future."

Mr. Wilson made the disclosure that the Nautilus "will commence operation during 1954."

Since the Defense budget was first drawn up, the Defense Secretary said, operations of the nuclear reactor and power plant at Arco, Idaho, have clearly demonstrated the "practical application of atomic energy" to propel submarines.

AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss had revealed earlier that the land-based prototype at Arco has made "the equivalent of a voyage across the Atlantic Ocean—submerged all the way and at

URGE GUIDED-MISSILE INVESTIGATION

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has been given 18 months in which to investigate the guided-missile programs of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The Senate Appropriations Committee "directed" the investigation as the result of what it called "a disorganized situation" in the guided-missile field.

Service witnesses appearing before the Committee during hearings on the 1955 appropriations bill "in almost every instance" lauded the characteristics of the missiles under production for their particular service, the Committee reported, but "had a tendency to belittle the programs of the sister services."

It appears, the Committee said, "that it would be practical to make some attempt to standardize at least those missiles which are being produced for approximately the same missions."

Mr. Wilson has been directed to report the findings of his investigation of the program to the Committee "not later than 15 Jan. 1955."

full power." The idea for the simulated "run across the Atlantic," came from RADM. H. G. Rickover, he said.

Admiral Rickover, who has been credited with the major role in development of the A-sub told THE JOURNAL: "We, of course, have learned a great deal at Arco, and we are incorporating this knowledge in the Nautilus and in any future designs."

Another development in the A-sub field came last week at Miami where Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air James H. Smith, Jr., told the Aviation Writers Association that the Nautilus will be armed with a 14,522-pound guided missile, the Regulus.

One of the two new atomic submarines will be constructed in a Naval Shipyard, Secretary Wilson said. He noted that "The application of nuclear power in naval vessels has created the need for a higher order of engineering skill than was previously required" and "it is vital" to expand the base of this experience and knowledge to Naval shipyards.

Senate Approves Two Service Study Plans: Drops Limitation On Off-Duty Law Study

Two military study programs—one on-duty, one off-duty—have been given the stamp of approval by the Senate.

The first permits increased post-graduate training of Naval officers; the second approves legal training during off-duty hours of personnel in all the Services.

The Senate boosted funds to enroll Navy officers "for postgraduate instruction at civilian schools" to more than $75 million. This is an increase of $60,000 over the amount approved by the House.

"The Navy planned to have 305 officers under instruction in technical subjects at various universities where such instruction can most economically be provided and where the best instruction in such subjects is available," the Senate Appropriations Committee said. "The number of officers taking this type of instruction is less than one-half of one per cent of the officers in the Navy, which is a very austere program when the requirements for technically qualified officers to operate the billions of dollars' worth of technical equipment in the Navy is considered."

No additional funds were asked for off-duty legal training of Armed Forces personnel but the Senate approved a proviso which removes limitations on such training.

Payment of expenses for law or legal courses being taken by personnel in the off-duty education programs of the military departments has been prohibited by section 724 of the current appropriations act.

This provision, the Committee said, "was directed at full-time legal training where the total expense, both of training and of the compensation of the individual being trained, was being borne by the United States. It was never intended to prohibit or limit the type and character of the courses being taken by individuals studying on their own time and where the military departments were making only partial contributions to the expenses of such off-duty study."

In order to "clarify" the intention of section 724, the Senate added a proviso which reads: "Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to the off-duty training of military personnel as prescribed by section 730 of this Act."

Boost Service Benefits Says SecDef Wilson, AF Sec'y Talbott Tells How to Do It

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson on 16 June told the graduation class at the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., that military personnel be given "an increased feeling of security by improving personnel policies and administration of them."

The Pentagon chief said "we must have sound incentives for improvement, including fair compensation in the broadest sense, which includes all Service benefits. . . . We are actively working on these problems in the Pentagon, and I believe some substantial progress has been made."

Speaking almost at exactly the same hour as Mr. Wilson, Air Force Secretary

Sec. Talbott

"THE SECOND PRINCIPAL cause which constitutes more than 50 per cent of the problems which are causing our people to get out of the service are problems internal to service administration and management. The problems themselves are too many to enumerate here; but they cover the operation of our clubs, post exchanges and commissaries, the lack of delegation of authority, the attitudes of some commanders, the frequent moves of our people, and even the frequency of payday."

"Our people in this report asked for simple things. They asked that PX's and commissaries be kept open during a portion of off duty hours and not closed for inventory on paydays. They asked if they could not be paid twice a month. They asked to be given proper warning for a change of station move so they could make provision for their families. They asked for protection from gouging and other problems associated with attempts of local landlords to exploit them."

"THE CURE to our first cause of unrest—the improvement of pay and the restoration of traditional rights and privileges—is something that must be taken up by Congress. Congress is well aware of our problem. I think that they have stopped any further encroachments. However, I have found that legislation many times moves slowly, and the restoration of our old rights, which are in reality broken promises, will require a matter of years."

"The second cause—the problem having to do with our own internal administration—is your problem and my problem. I want to appeal to you to consider your personnel and their management as the most valuable resource we have in our inventory. It is distressing to see personnel policies rigidly applied, or as it has been aptly stated, policies being used as an excuse for not thinking. I am sure that all of you will agree with me that loyalty must extend downward as well as upward. If we will only treat our men and women as human beings rather than so many numbers, we will then be able to do much to correct our own problems and to retain more and more our experienced personnel as career servicemen."

"A CORRECTION of these personnel problems will, I am sure, cause a big upswing in our reenlistment rates. The doubling of our present rates with the resulting retention of our highly trained and skilled airmen, not to mention our officers, will be worth billions of dollars to our country. In addition, we will have an improvement in our operational efficiency, which because of its impact on maintaining the peace in the world has a value impossible to assess in dollars."

SILVER ANNIVERSARY FOR WATERWAYS

The Army Corps of Engineers' Waterways Experiment Station at Vicksburg, Miss., yesterday, 18 June, celebrated its 25th anniversary with a ceremony at which Maj. Gen. S. D. Sturgis, Jr., USA, Engineer Chief, spoke. He said the Station has saved taxpayers at least $100,000,000. Next week's issue of THE JOURNAL will publish a special report on the Station by Col. Carroll H. Dunn, CE, USA.

Senate Committee Restores $177 Million In Defense Funds; AF Gets Major Share

Funds to run the Defense Department during the coming fiscal year have been boosted $177 million by the Senate.

Also approved was a stepped-up allowance for schooling of dependent children, and removal of limitations on legal studies undertaken by military personnel in off-duty hours.

As passed by the House, the 1955 Defense Appropriations Bill provided approximately $28.7 billion for the military departments. The new total provided by the Senate is nearly $28.9 billion. The bill now goes to conference.

Funds restored include $163.5 million to the Air Force, $13 million to the Navy and $500,000 to the Office of the Secretary of Defense. No change was made in Army funds voted by the House.

Recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee report (see separate stories on other pages of THE JOURNAL) were:

• Dependent Schooling: Increases allowance provided for school-age dependents from $225 to $237.50.

• Attaché Duty: Would cut number of personnel assigned to duty as military and naval attachés.

• Guided Missiles: Urges investigation of guided-missile program in an attempt to partially standardize production.

• Security Program: Suggests coordination of Defense security program under a civilian head.

• Submarine Force: Recommends intensified training for men in the submarine service.

• Post-Grad Work: Increases funds to enroll Navy officers in civilian PG schools.

• Air Force R&D: Increases funds for research and development in the Air Force.

• Reserves: Approves transfer of money from other funds to provide for an expanded Reserve program.

• Legal Studies: Removes limitations on legal studies undertaken by military personnel in off-duty hours.

Sec Wilson Supports Army-AF Comptroller System In Bid For Enlarged Secretariat

The retention of separate military comptrollers in the Army and Air Force received solid backing this week from Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

His views were presented to the Senate Armed Services Committee as that group held hearings on a bill which would add six additional Assistant Secretaries to the Defense Department's growing list of top civilian leaders.

At present there are 23 Secretaries, Deputy, Under and Assistant Secretaries at the Pentagon. The Defense Department bill (S 3466), introduced by Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass) provides two additional Assistant Secretaries each for the Army, Navy and Air Force, for a new total of 29.

Secretary Wilson said the new assistants are needed to "insure civilian control." The shortage of assistant secretaries (at present the three Services each have a Secretary, Under Secretary and two Assistant Secretaries) "places an inordinate number of duties and responsibilities upon them," he added. "They need to have some of those functions reassigned in order that each may specialize to a greater degree within his assigned area of responsibility."

In each Service one of the new assistants would be charged with the sole responsibility for handling the finances of that Service. Designated Assistant Secretary for Financial Management, he could also (on the action of the Service Secretary) be named Comptroller.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas said if the bill is enacted he will designate the Assistant Secretary for Financial Management as the Comptroller.

Mr. Wilson explained that the Army

SERVICES' SECRETARIATS

If Congress approves legislation to increase the civilian secretariats of the Army, Navy and Air Force, the top policy-making team in each Service will look like this:

Army: Secretary

Under Secretary (deputy and general manager)

Asst Sec for Financial Management

Asst Sec for Logistics

Asst Sec for Manpower and Reserve Forces

Asst Sec for Civil-Military Affairs

Navy: Secretary

Under Secretary (deputy and general manager)

Asst Sec for Financial Management (Comptroller)

Asst Sec for Air

Asst Sec for Personnel and Reserve Forces

Asst Sec for Materiel

Air Force: Secretary

Under Secretary (deputy and general manager)

Asst Sec for Financial Management

Asst Sec for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve Forces

Asst Sec for Materiel

Asst Sec for Research and Development and Air Force, "due to the fact that they are organized somewhat differently, prefer to have a military comptroller." He said both systems will work and both systems will make it possible for the civilian assistant secretary to set financial policy.

Robert Lanphier Named Deputy To Secretary Pike

Assistant Secretary of Defense for Supply and Logistics, T. P. Pike, has announced the appointment of Robert C. Lanphier, jr., as his Deputy.

In addition to his new duties, Mr. Lanphier will continue as Director of Planning and Review in Supply and Logistics. He also will act as Assistant Secretary in Mr. Pike's absence.

Col. Prindle Picked CofS For 18th AF At Donaldson

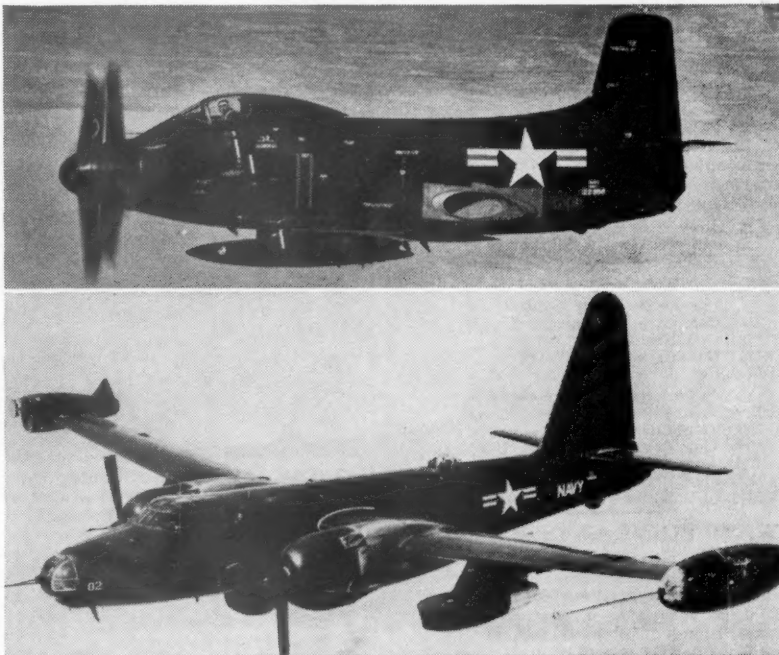

Col. Hoyt L. Prindle has been named Chief of Staff of the Eighteenth Air Force, it is announced by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Douglass, jr., USAF Commander at Donaldson AFB, S. C.

Colonel Prindle has served as Commander of the 314th Troop Carrier Wing at Sewart AFB, Tenn., since its activation in 1948.

UPPER—The Navy's A2D Douglas Skyshark with Allison T-40 Turbo-prop engine designed for air support missions. The A2D can carry up to 15,000 pounds of bombs on its 50-foot wings and can operate from carrier decks or land runways. Lower—Lockheed's P2V-5 Neptune to which has been added two jet engines shown in pods outboard of the two Wright turbo-compound engines. This experimental model has been so successful that the jet pods will be installed as standard equipment on P2V-7 models now in production.

Navy Shows Shorter Take-Off With BLC; Demonstrates New Planes At Opa Locka

The Navy's new boundary layer control system, installed in a Grumman F9F-4 Panther, was shown publicly for the first time last week to visiting members of the Aviation Writers Association at the Marine Corps Air Station, Opa Locka, Fla.

Flown down the runway side by side with a standard F9F-4, the BLC equipped Panther was off the ground in an astonishingly short distance and high in the air before the non-BLC Panther was airborne. Likewise in landing, the BLC Panther came in 20 knots slower and stopped after an appreciably shorter roll. The BLC plane was piloted by Lt. Comdr. Don Walton, USN.

The new device was developed by Bureau of Aeronautics Engineer John S. Atinello. It uses the jet engine as a power source, bleeding air which is then blown out through perforated tubes along the trailing edges of the wings. It weighs only 50 pounds and can be turned on and off by flick of a switch. After tests in the David Taylor Model Basin's Aero Laboratory, Grumman undertook the task of designing and incorporating the system into a Panther and the current model is the result.

Also demonstrated for the visiting newsmen was the Lockheed P2V-5 long-range anti-submarine patrol bomber on which two jet pods had been added for experimental work. They have been so successful that the P2V-7 models, now in production, will have jet pods installed as standard equipment. Besides giving the sub spotter faster over-the-target speed the extra engines greatly increase the overall versatility of the Neptune by faster takeoff so that they can use shorter runways. The normal P2V's are powered by two Wright R-3350-30WA turbo-compound engines each delivering 3500 horsepower with water injection at takeoff. The two Westinghouse jets add 3400 pounds thrust each.

Another interesting development shown for the first time was the Douglas A2D Skyshark turbo-prop attack plane now in production for the Navy. An outgrowth of the Douglas AD series, the A2D is the only single-engine turbo-prop plane now in production for the Armed Forces. It weighs only 16,500 pounds and is designed to carry 8000 pounds of ordnance on close air support flights, but can also carry 15,000 pounds of external ordnance. The writers were particularly impressed with the low noise level of the turbo-prop engine.

The Skyshark is powered by an Allison T-40-A-6 turbo-prop delivering more than 5500 horsepower and driving two contra-rotating Aero-Products propellers. The T-40 is designed to operate as a constant speed engine during flight. Changes in fuel flow are synchronized with changes in propeller setting to keep the engine at constant speed while at the same time changing power output.

Also shown were the Chance Vought F7U-3 Cutlass, and the Grumman S2F-2 twin-engine propeller-driven antisubmarine plane.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy James Smith, jr., who addressed the Aviation Writers Association annual dinner the night before, was present for the demonstration.

Welcoming the writers were Brig. Gen. William G. Manley, USMC, commanding general of the Third Marine Aircraft Wing stationed at Opa Locka, and Col. Thomas G. Ennis, USMC, commanding officer of the Marine Corps Air Station there.

Col. McBrayer Leaves CADF

Col. Cornelius E. McBrayer, director of communications and electronics for headquarters, Central Air Defense Force at Grandview AFB, Mo., has been reassigned to headquarters of the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific.

The colonel came to CADF from headquarters of the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he served as chief of the communications branch.

Col. Bisson to War College

Col. Robert O. Bisson, USMC, Commander, Marine Air Group 13, 1st Provisional Marine Air-Ground Task Force, FMF, Kaneohe Bay, T. H., has been ordered to the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

He will be relieved by Col. Robert Johnson, USMC, who is scheduled to arrive from El Toro Marine Air Station, Santa Ana, Calif., early in July.

ASK REDUCTION IN MILITARY ATTACHES

A move to reduce the number of personnel assigned to military and naval attaché duty is underway in the Defense Department.

The Senate Appropriations Committee said this week that "virtually completed" Pentagon staff studies show that "definite curtailment of attaché personnel strength" can be brought about without impairing Defense functions.

Senator Allen J. Ellender, Sr. (D-La.) recommended the cuts following an investigation of military attachés assigned to U.S. diplomatic posts abroad. He recommended limiting, where possible, the assignment of military reporting functions to a single service attaché.

In reporting the military appropriations bill this week, the Senate Committee said it "expects that the Department will effectuate Senator Ellender's recommendations with a view to early accomplishment of substantial economies."

Celebrating the 5th birthday of the 45 "Victrola" phonographs and records.

The 5th Anniversary of "45" brings many happy returns to you!

Crowning achievement of the "45" system is the Extended Play Record—brings you great music for 40% less than you used to pay

Just 5 years ago RCA Victor introduced the "45" RPM system and gave you a reward of new listening pleasure.

With the touch of a button you could sit back and enjoy nearly two hours of your favorite music. There were no changes to make . . . no bulky albums to tote and store . . . and you were rewarded with music that was richer, truer—with all the brilliance of "live" performance.

Moreover, the "45" became the only system that played every kind of recorded music—and played them all automatically, selectively.

Today, with the new RCA Victor 45 Extended Play records, you have all of these advances—plus one very happy financial return: more music for less money.

These extraordinary little records bring you the same amount of great music as two 12" old-style records, yet cost little over half as much.

RCA's continuing program of research in other fields of home entertainment—radio, television, tape-recording, and high fidelity, brings happy returns for millions of Americans.

Research, Flexibility Basics of Naval Air

The two keystones of modern U. S. Naval Aviation are research and flexibility, Assistant Secretary of Navy James H. Smith, Jr., stated 11 June in a speech before the Aviation Writers Association at Miami Beach, Fla.

"The American people can take satisfaction," he declared, "that their research programs for defense produce a continuous crop of techniques, devices and knowledge of potential and actual benefit to all the people of the free world." Secretary Smith cited the Navy-sponsored system of "boundary layer control" as the latest indication of how dollars invested in research for military development can have useful peacetime application.

Flexibility, Secretary Smith continued, is a necessity because the Navy must be ready to perform the variety of tasks assigned to it, depending upon what type of future military situations might confront the country.

New Navy Register Is Published; Shows Overall Increase Of Only 157 Regulars

Despite an input of 580 new ensigns from Annapolis last June, the Navy attained an overall increase of only 157 career officers during calendar year 1953.

The new (1 Jan. 1954) edition of the Navy Register, just published by the Government Printing Office, shows that 38,572 career officers were on duty with the Navy at the beginning of 1954. In the last previous Navy census (1 Jan. 1953) the total was 38,415.

During the same period, the Navy gained 275 new warrant officers. At the beginning of 1953 there were 5,727 Regular warrant officers on duty; by the end of the year the total had risen to 5,802.

The largest gain in commissioned officers fell within the Line ranks where 356 new officers were added. This gain was partially offset, however, by losses in the Navy's Medical Department where the total number of doctors, dentists and nurses dropped almost 300.

Slight gains were made in the Supply Corps (27), Chaplains Corps (26), Civil Engineer Corps (17) and Medical Service Corps (2).

Added to the Register were 12 new pages listing Navy retired personnel and 24 new pages of Marine Corps names. One

RE-MOTHBALL CARRIER

The escort aircraft carrier, USS Cape Esperance, will be placed in mothballs at San Francisco following her overhaul on the West Coast shortly after 15 August.

The Cape Esperance was the second ship of her type ordered to be inactivated since the end of the Korean War. Only three other escort carriers remain in service throughout the world. The vessel saw service in the Pacific during WW II, was later laid up, then recommissioned when the conflict in Korea broke out.

new category of active duty Navy officers was added: "Officers not in the Line nor in any Staff Corps of the Navy." Under this heading is listed the name of Cdr. Charles Brendler, Leader of the Navy Band.

A major change is in the price of the Register. The 1953, paper-bound edition sold for $4.50. The new paper-bound volume, published for the first time as a House of Representatives Document, sells for $5.75 at the Government Printing Office.

USMC to Convene Board for 'Contract Tours,' Maximum of 700 Reserve Agreements Seen

The Marine Corps will convene its first special board to recommend 700 Reserve officers and enlisted personnel for "contract tours" of duty on or about 23 August.

The agreements, to become effective during fiscal year 1955, will be offered only after an application has been submitted.

The Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 provides that the Services may enter into standard written agreements with members of Reserve components for periods of active duty not to exceed five years.

If the contract is terminated by the Service, the individual will be given severance pay in an amount equaling one month's pay for each year remaining under the terms of the contract.

All but a small percentage of the contracts will be awarded to officers who will serve in the Reserve program and to those who possess critical occupational specialties who will serve with the Regular establishment.

The Marine Corps expects to offer a substantial number of agreements to enlisted personnel for service in the Reserve program during fiscal year 1955.

Applications from enlisted personnel for service in the Regular Marine Corps are not invited at this time.

USMC Seeks 2d Lts.; Classes In Aug., Sept.

The Marine Corps, to meet its need for second lieutenants, has completed plans for Marine Corps Procurement activities to accept applications from June college graduates.

Those who are selected for the program will be sent to the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., for 10-week course of instruction. Classes are scheduled to convene on 2 August and 15 November.

Applicants must be at least 20 years old and not over 27; they must be graduates of an accredited college or university in a field other than medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, theology, pharmacy, music or art.

All who enroll in the Marine OCS program are subject to serve three years of active duty after appointment. After the completion of the 10-week course, candidates will be commissioned and given five months basic training as second lieutenants.

Complete details can be had at any Marine Recruiting Station.

Navy Fleet Logistics To Get Delivery Of Convair Flying LST's Late This Year

A "flying LST" that can land guns, trucks supplies or an assault company of Marines directly onto an enemy beach is now in production at Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp. in San Diego, Calif.

The new craft is a bow-loader version of the Navy's water-based turbo-prop transport, the four-engined R3Y-1 Trade-wind built by Convair. The new plane is designated the R3Y-2. Both versions are scheduled to go into service late this year with the Navy's Fleet Logistic Air Wings, Pacific, at Alameda, Calif.

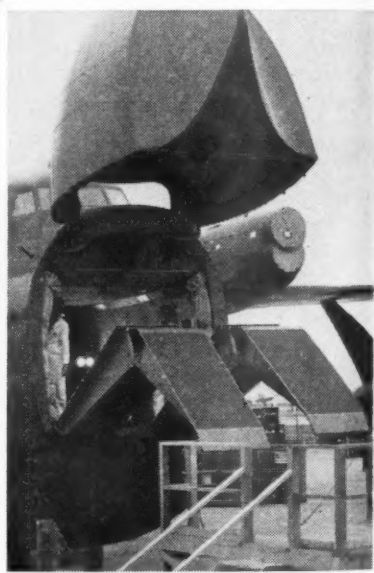

Announcement of the new R3Y-2 was made by Ernest G. Stout, Engineer-Staff Engineering of Convair, at a national meeting of the Aviation Writers Association last week at Miami Beach, Calif., where a scale model of the new aircraft was shown in a swimming pool. Many Navy, Air Force, and Marine Officers witnessed the showing.

The R3Y's are powered by four Allison T-40 turbo-prop engines developing a total of approximately 22,000 horsepower and driving contra-rotating Aeroproducts propellers.

For an assault operation, the R3Y-2 lands in offshore waters and taxis to the beach. When the hull touches the sand, the bow opens upward like the luggage compartment on an automobile. A ramp is dropped and the loaded vehicles or troops debark directly onto the beach.

To pull off the beach, the pilot simply reverses the propellers and backs away. A 30-second taxi run lifts the 80-ton plane into the air for the return trip.

The bow-loader can fly 24 tons of cargo. The main deck, made of extruded magnesium, is 88 feet long and more than 9 feet wide.

The cargo deck stretches back from the bow door on one level, unbroken by bulkheads or other obstructions. The cleared load space was achieved by concentrating the five-man flight crew on a higher deck in the bow and by compartmentizing the hull below the cargo deck, as in modern ship construction. The compartmentation gives the hull superior strength as well as water-tight integrity.

The R3Y-2 can carry four 155-millimeter howitzers, three 2½-ton trucks, six jeeps, two half-tracks or several other types of military equipment. The bow door opening is 8 feet 4 inches wide and 6 feet 8 inches high.

A multi-purpose airplane, the R3Y-2 can be fitted with 103 demountable, rearward-facing seats for normal transport operations. It also can carry 92 litters and 12 attendants if it is needed as a hospital evacuation plane.

Like the transport version, the R3Y-2 also has a 10-foot-wide door on the aft port side of the hull for normal dock loading of cargo.

Both the R3Y-1 and the R3Y-2 have air-conditioning and pressurization systems.

Col. Quilter MAG-31 CO; Col. Beard To LantFlt.

Col. Charles J. Quilter, USMC, succeeded Col. Richard A. Beard, USMC, this week as Commanding Officer, Marine Air Group 31, based at MCAS, Miami, Fla.

Col. Quilter, who was Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Third Marine Air Wing, has been stationed at the Miami station since August 1953.

Before that, he served in Korea as Assistant G-3 of the First Marine Air Wing's forward echelon and as Chief Liaison Officer to 5th Air Force Headquarters, Advanced.

During WWII, he participated in encounters over Midway, the New Hebrides and the Solomon Islands. Later, he was named a member of the Staff of Marine Air Wings, Pacific, and Liaison Officer to the Commander, Air Forces, Pacific Fleet. Colonel Beard, who has been Commanding Officer of MAG-31 since June 1953, will report to the Commander-in-Chief, Atlantic Fleet.

He served in Korea as Assistant Air Base Commander of the Kimpo Airfield for two weeks after the field was captured.

Lt. Col. F. C. Drury, USMC, is Acting G-3 Officer.

Col. Eddy's Book Recalls FDR-Ibn Saud Conference

"FDR Meets Ibn Saud," a booklet by Col. William A. Eddy, USMC-(ret.), First U. S. Minister Plenipotentiary to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia from 1944 to 1946, has been published by the American Friends of the Middle East, Inc.

Colonel Eddy, who served as interpreter for the wartime meeting of President Roosevelt and King Ibn Saud aboard the cruiser, USS Quincy, in the Suez Canal, also handled the elaborate arrangements for the conference. Since he was the only person present during the conversation between President Roosevelt and the late King of Saudi Arabia, Colonel Eddy reveals many facts about this WW II incident hitherto unpublished.

Guide words for today

"Speak softly and carry a big stick"

—THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Everyone remembers Theodore Roosevelt's famous foreign policy formula . . . but few recall that he was referring to the Monroe Doctrine. He did not intend to make America an international bully. He did intend to keep the old-world tyrants, dictators and power-mad aggressors out of the Americas. The world has learned to place little confidence in the loud harangues which characterize international talk today. While we still hope and work to achieve lasting peace, it behooves all the free nations to heed Theodore Roosevelt's advice . . . to speak softly, and to build the defensive strength which will give meaning to their words.

U. S. AIR FORCE

2d AF Converted to All-Jet; Ceremony Planned

The conversion of the Second Air Force to the nation's first "all-jet" bomber force will be observed 31 July at a "J" day celebration at Barksdale AFB, La., headquarters.

Maj. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, jr., USAF, Commander of the Second, announced that the climax of the event will be a retreat ceremony to formally "retire" the piston engine bombers which have been the backbone of SAC since WW II.

Combat-ready bomber wings from Second Air Force bases throughout the entire eastern half of the U. S. and from Puerto Rico will take part in the observance. The Boeing B-47 jet bomber and the Republic F-84 jet fighter will be featured in an air show during the afternoon. Exhibits showing the historic combat achievements of all Second Air Force wings, as well as their accomplishments with jet aircraft, will illustrate the status of modern air power.

The Second Air Force was deactivated shortly after WW II and reactivated November 1949 under the command of then Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Atkinson with headquarters at Barksdale. The command then was equipped with Boeing B-29 Superfortresses and the then advanced B-50. General Armstrong assumed command in November 1952. He was one of the first to fly the B-47 bomber, and formed the first jet bomber wings in the country at MacDill AFB, Fla., in 1951.

In addition to its B-47 equipped bomber wings, Second Air Force has one wing of B-36 photo reconnaissance planes and two wings of Republic F-84 fighter bombers.

Col. Henley To ATLD, MATS

Col. Frank S. Henley has been named to succeed Col. James F. McClendon as Chief of Staff for the Atlantic Division, MATS. He currently is assigned to the Far East Air Force.

BRIG. GEN. M. K. DEICHELMANN, (left) Air Force ROTC Commandant, presents a check for more than $1200 to Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Air University Commander, Maxwell AFB, Ala., for the scholarship fund of the Air Force Aid Society in memory of the late General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, former Air Force Chief of Staff. The money was received as contribution from personnel in Headquarters, AFOTC and the many detachments at colleges and universities across the nation.

Col. Huglin NEAC Deputy

Col. Harvey P. Huglin has been appointed Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Headquarters, Northeast Air Command, replacing Col. William H. Wise, now Commander of Pepperrell AFB, Newfoundland.

Prior to his assignment at Headquarters, NEAC, Colonel Huglin was Deputy Commander of the 34th Air Division (Def.) at Kirtland AFB, New Mexico.

SKYWATCH BIRTHDAY

The Air Force will pay tribute to members of the Ground Observer Corps on 14 July, second anniversary of "Operation Skywatch."

"Operation Skywatch" was inaugurated two years ago when volunteer civilians began a round-the-clock plane-watching schedule to supplement the Air Defense of this country. Some 19,000 observation posts and 49 filter centers into which their reports are fed have been established in 36 states.

In honor of the members of "Operation Skywatch," the Air Force has set aside 14 July as Ground Observer Corps Day. General Benjamin W. Chidlaw, U. S. Air Defense Commander, praised the volunteer spotters and declared that "they are an invaluable aid to our security, and will be for years to come."

B-61's Shipped In Seven Parts, Assembled In Field; Launching At Patrick AFB Shown

New techniques in design, manufacturing and shipment are being utilized to build and ship the Air Force's B-61 Martin Matador pilotless bomber in seven parts so that it can be assembled in the field.

The announcement was made simultaneously with the first press showing at Patrick AFB, Fla., of a launching of the Matador missile. About 120 members of the Aviation Writers Association were admitted to the Air Force Missile Test Center to witness a routine test firing of a Matador.

Parts Interchangeable

The Matador's seven parts are completely interchangeable. The nose, wing, center section, aft tail, fin and fullet fairing stabilizer sections and the instrumentation are crated in easily transportable boxes. The Matador, it was stated, is powered by an Allison-turbojet engine, but uses a rocket for launching.

The launching at Patrick was done by the 69th Pilotless Bomber Squadron (Light), the second such unit to be activated. Later this year it will be sent overseas. The First Pilotless Bomber Squadron (Light), also trained at Patrick, is already in Germany.

The visitors were welcomed to Patrick by Maj. Gen. William L. Richardson, commander of the AFMTC, who is soon to be retired. Briefings on the operation were given by Lt. Col. Richard W. Maffrey, Commander of the 69th Pilotless Bomber Squadron, which is a unit of the Tactical Air Command; Maj. John R. Fowler, Matador Project Officer for the Air Research and Development Command; Maj. Benjamin F. Smotherman, Air Proving Ground Command Liaison officer, and Maj. Salvatore A. Pelle, Officer of Information Services, AFMTC.

Pan Am-RCA Operation

Another speaker was Mr. R. S. Mitchell, Division Manager, Pan American World Airways, Guided Missiles Range Division, who explained the arrangement whereby Pan Am, as prime contractor, and the Radio Corporation of America, as subcontractor, operate the range.

"We now have the complete responsibility for operations at Cape Canaveral," Mr. Mitchell said, "the engineering, photo and data reduction laboratories functions at Patrick Air Force Base as well as electronic and optical maintenance shops there. We are now nearing completion of phase-in operations at Grand Bahama Island, Stations Eleuthera, San Salvador, Mayaguana and Grand Turk are now being phased-in to become operational early next year.

"Contractor personnel is almost evenly divided—PAA having 560 employees and RCA 644, totaling 1,204. Because of the excellent assistance and cooperation of General Richardson and his staff, and in fact, all of the military and civilian personnel at Patrick Air Force Base phase-in has been smooth and on schedule."

The Matador actually launched in the test shown to the press was being put under maximum strain to test certain of its mechanism. About 60 miles out the strain rose too high and it became necessary to explode the missile in the air to prevent it from going outside the safety limits of the range. In the afternoon another Matador was fired and guided safely to its target area.

Show Sperry Drones

In the afternoon, the visiting writers were given a demonstration of the operation of drone aircraft by the 3205th Drone Group of the Air Proving Ground Command, Duke Field, Eglin AFB, Fla. The group was under the command of Lt. Col. Edward F. Hoover, jr.

Also taking part in the briefing of the newsmen were Lt. Col. Walter C. Cannon, Operations and Training Staff Officer of the group, and Lt. Col. John P. Grant, Communications and Electronics Staff Officer.

Equipment developed and manufactured by the Sperry Gyroscope Co. was used in the drone operation.

Personnel Participating

In the demonstration of the BF-80 jet drone plane, 1st Lt. Donald G. Weidman served as director pilot of the Director Crew with 1st Lt. Ronald A. Berdoy as remote pilot. For the Master Director Crew 2d Lt. Lincoln K. Parker was director pilot and 1st Lt. Michael M. Mitchell remote pilot. Capt. James A. McCulley was safety pilot aboard the jet drone. The Ground Control Station was manned by 1st Lt. Ross W. Brunner as rudder controller and Capt. Charles E. Phillips

M/Sgt. Gets BS Degree After 18 Years' Effort

An 18-year effort to complete work on a Bachelor of Science Degree was climaxed this month when M/Sgt. John A. Poe was graduated from the University of Maryland.

Sergeant Poe attended Fenn College, O., for a year in 1936, but it was not until 1951 when he was assigned to Andrews AFB that he was able to resume regular school classes. "Operation Bootstrap," the Air Force program which permits a serviceman to take six months off from regular duty to complete work for a degree, enabled Sergeant Poe to reach his goal. He previously had attended night classes and studied on his own.

Press Photographers Honor Maj. Lookadoo

Maj. William Lookadoo, USAF, received a citation from the National Press Photographers Association during the award dinner at their eighth annual convention last week in Atlantic City. Citation reads:

"To Maj. William Lookadoo, USAF, with deep respect for an officer and a gentleman who has served his country well in an assignment that called for diplomacy, integrity, good judgment and specialized knowledge. 'With affection for an old friend whose skill gave true meaning to the words 'good press relations' as he stood fast for all that is right, honorable and constructive in press photography, always mindful of his basic responsibility in keeping the American people correctly informed about the achievements and aspiration of the U. S. Air Force, Washington, D. C., 1950-54."

Major Lookadoo, former USAF Public Relations officer in Washington, now stationed in Honolulu, was not present to receive the citation. A citation was also presented to the Air Force in tribute to its skill "in using established channels of communication to attain public understanding of its special role in safeguarding the nation."

Services Lose Educators. Included among the many military retirements in the next two months are top educators of each of the Armed Services. Lt. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, USA, commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. will be retired on 31 July. On 30 June the following retirements will become effective: Lt. Gen. Robert L. Harper, USAF, whose tour as commander of the Air Training Command has been marked by a vastly accelerated program to supply the pilots and crews for the war in Korea while at the same time making the shift to an all-jet combat force; VAdm. C. Turner Joy, USN, whose tour as Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy followed immediately his duty in Korea; and Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, USMC, who took over command of the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Va., after service as Commandant of the Corps. Later in the year Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, USA, will be retired after serving as superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy.

Already it has been announced that General Bruce will become president of the University of Houston. The others doubtless will go on to further service to the nation in positions of responsibility in industry or government. In fact, as predicted in THE JOURNAL some weeks ago, it is anticipated that great use will be made of retired officers in government. This is wise and laws should be liberalized to remove some of the existing obstacles. With the lowering of the retirement age for generals from 62 to 60, there will be hundreds of experienced administrators and technical men whose services would be of the highest value to the government. Legal restraints barring them from certain positions in industry and government or stringently limiting the governmental pay they can receive should be removed.

"Secret" Injustices. Action of General Curtis E. LeMay, SAC commander, in calling the attention of the Department of the Air Force to the financial losses suffered by officers and airmen rotated to 90-day temporary duty, "global mobility," training missions overseas is most commendable. Such reports provide Pentagon authorities with factual information to bolster their appeals to Congress for better treatment of Service personnel.

However, we can see no logical reason for labeling the document "Secret." It is hard to conceive how a report on pay and injustice can involve security. If security matters have crept in they should be deleted and the balance made public. It is only by putting hard facts before the American people and Congress that they can be stirred to action.

Service Children. The Parent-Teachers Association at The Infantry Center, Ft. Benning, Ga., has pointed the way for the Department of the Army and, we hope, the Department of Defense, to strengthen the Services' system of education for the children of uniformed personnel. In a resolution endorsed by the President of the post school council and the Commanding General of The Infantry Center for transmittal through channels to the Department of the Army, the Benning PTA recommended:

a. A school curriculum based on national educational standards to be used as a guide in post school systems.

b. A uniform method of allotting school operating funds; this method to be based on Army-wide standards rather than upon standards prevailing in the particular geographical area in which a military installation is located.

c. Uniform systems of record keeping to facilitate evaluation of a child's progress upon transfer from one school to another.

d. Allotment of funds based on enrollment rather than on "average daily attendance" figures.

Under present conditions, the education of Service children is considerably handicapped. In many instances, Service families are transferred from post to post in the middle of school terms. They find that each change brings a completely different school set-up. This situation poses a formidable barrier to the child's adjustment when the shift occurs between school terms, but is severely aggravated when it happens in the middle of a term. Restrictions on the per-pupil cost of school

"Unification" of Tours

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

A comparison of the lengths of the new foreign service tours for Marine personnel with dependents (JOURNAL 1 May 1954) with the Army foreign service tours in the same areas (JOURNAL 17 April 1954) reveals that in some instances the Marine tours are of much shorter duration than the Army tours. For example:

Area	Marines Army	Months	Months
Alaska	18	24
Cuba	24	36
Morocco	24	36
Newfoundland ...	18	36

I believe the Navy foreign service tours are the same length as the Marine tours. It appears to me that a clearly indicated step in the current process of making Army service more attractive is to equalize the length of the foreign service tours for all the services by reducing the longer Army tours to the same shorter lengths as those currently prescribed for the Marine and Navy personnel in the same areas. Let's see a demonstration of "unification" in this matter.

Old Cavalry Cap Ornaments

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

We are going to have an affair in honor of Troop "B" First United States Cavalry of the old frontier army. We have the caps but so far have been unable to obtain the cap ornaments.

I thought because of the wide acquaintance of your readers with military affairs they might be able to suggest some leads where they might be obtained. We could make out with only three or four if necessary but they are very important.

Chaplains Serve All

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

On page 1206, of THE JOURNAL for 5 June 1954, it is reported that: Chaplain (Maj.) Arthur L. Duhl arrived at Aberdeen Proving Ground to serve men of the Evangelical United Brethren church faith. This infers that he will only serve men of that particular church, when, actually, though of that church, he will serve men of all faiths.

I mention this because I do not want your readers to get the idea that we chaplains are fostering a narrow point of view as to the role of our ministry. We pride ourselves make Army schools dependent upon the standards of surrounding civilian communities instead of taking into account the special problems of schools on military posts—constant turn-overs and mid-year disruptions.

There was one hopeful sign in the wind this week—the Senate Appropriations Committee voted to provide $237.50 a year per pupil for the education of Service children overseas. This represented a compromise between the $250 asked by the Department of Defense and the $225 recommended by the House as in past years.

Col. Edward L. Rowny, president of the Ft. Benning PTA, put the point succinctly: "We hope that the education of our children will never be viewed as a matter lying on the fringe of parental and governmental responsibility. We feel that education of the young forms the very nexus of social responsibility, and our resolution expresses this conviction."

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—A House Select Committee on Post-War Military Policy, which met in a closed session to review testimony for and against the amalgamation of the War and Navy Departments, unanimously adopted a report urging that before any action was taken, Congress "should have the benefit of the wide judgment and experience of the many commanders in the field." The Committee evaded any commitment on the wisdom of merger even after the war.

50 Years Ago—A naval board concluded after a 28-month study of the comparable value of coal and oil as a fuel, that there should be no difficulty with an intelligent fire room force in burning oil in a uniform manner and obtaining an approximate idea both as to evaporative output and efficiency conditions.

90 Years Ago—The ceremony of dedicating the site for the Battle Monument to the men of the Regular Army who have fallen in this war was observed at West Point, on the 15th. In addition to the officers of the Army, the proceedings were witnessed by thousands of civilians, who came, moved by curiosity or anxiety to see and hear one so widely known as the orator of the day . . . General McClellan.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Attention Third Army Veterans! If you rolled with General Patton, an unusual opportunity presents itself to honor his memory.

The French Government has agreed to name the new bridge nearing completion at Fontainebleau, France, "Le Pont Patton" after our beloved Commander if an appropriate statue of General Patton is erected on the site prior to the completion of the bridge this year. It is estimated that $5,000 will assure the completion of the statue and it is requested that each Patton man send his check for $10 as soon as possible to Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, Commanding General, III Corps, Ft. Hood, Tex., addressed to the General George S. Patton Memorial Association Fund.

ARMY OPPOSITION to the promotion of the retired list of Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson has been overruled by the House Armed Services Committee which favorably reported S 2468, authorizing the elevation of General Richardson and eight other WWII field commanders to four-star rank. The Army took the position that General Richardson's WWII job (command of Hawaii and the Pacific area) was not considered a four-star billet. The House Committee, however, concurred in the Senate addition of General Richardson, "recognizing that his command was unique" and included at one time the army commanded by one of the other generals on the list.

THE DOCTORS' DRAFT ACT amendment, which will permit the Services to utilize physicians, dentists and allied medical specialists as enlisted personnel in their professional capacities, has gone to the White House for final consideration following House passage late last week. The bill (S 3096) plugs a "loop-hole," according to Representative Short (R-Mo.), "under which an individual could disqualify himself for a commission and thus be discharged by merely refusing to answer certain questions on the grounds that the answers might tend to incriminate him."

A MAJOR PORTION of Army JAGC officers "are more than three years behind their (Army promotion list) contemporaries," according to a House Armed Services Committee report. The Committee has approved HR 9000 to transfer the names of the officers on the judge advocate's promotion list to the Army promotion list in the position they would have attained if they had not been transferred from the Army list. Permanent colonels will be placed on the Army promotion list by the Army Secretary in positions "that will not affect their present order of precedence and will require as little change in date of rank as is possible."

THE PROMOTION of Cdr. Donald B. MacMillan, USNR-Ret., to the rank of Rear Admiral is provided in a bill (S 3476) passed this week by the Senate. The move is in recognition of Commander MacMillan's "lifelong and invaluable services . . . through outstanding contributions to the sciences of hydrography, meteorology and geography in the polar areas." The advancement carries no increase in pay.

CONTRACT AWARDS will have to be made by the Defense Department only to the lowest bidder if conferees approve an amendment to the 1955 military appropriations bill. The amendment, proposed by Senator Williams (R-Del.), and adopted by the Senate, stipulates that none of the '55 military funds can be used to pay for contracts unless they are awarded "on a competitive basis to the lowest responsible bidder." Considerable criticism was voiced by Congressional members when the Navy awarded a shipbuilding contract to a firm not making the lowest bid.

BEFORE THE NAVY reversed its position on the three Midshipmen whose commissions were held up pending security checks, Representative Sieminski (D-N. J.) inserted in the Congressional Record a statement which said in part: "In our town we are told that the definition of a security risk by the executive branch of the present administration is someone who talks too much. We hope that the Navy did not talk too much when it disclosed this boy's name (one of the three Midshipmen) for that would be condemnation before investigation."

COST OF THE KOREAN WAR has been set by Representative Smith (R-Wisc.) at approximately one-third the amount the United States spent on WWII. Statistics provided by Mr. Smith show that the Korean conflict cost approximately $151 billion as compared to approximately $500 billion for the second world war. WWI costs amounted to more than $66 billion.

QUICK HOUSE O.K. is anticipated for the bill to reduce the mandatory retirement age from 62 to 60 for permanent major generals. The measure (HR 9002) has won endorsement of the House Armed Services Committee. The bill permits retention to age 62 of an unlimited number of three- and four-star officers, and permits the Army and Air Force to carry until age 64 a maximum of 10—five each—of permanent major generals serving in higher temporary ranks.

ACTIVE DUTY STATUS for U. S. Property and Fiscal Officers would be confirmed by Congress if a recommendation of the House Armed Services Committee is adopted. The Committee has given the green light to a bill, already approved by the Senate (S 2217), which would make permanent the authority for these officers to serve on active duty. At present, 52 National Guard officers are serving on active duty under war powers authority.

ONLY TWO STEPS remain before final approval of the Army Veterinary Corps Equalization Bill. The measure (S 932) was reported by the House Armed Services Committee this week and is expected to win quick floor approval and the President's signature. It increases from two to three years the amount of constructive service credit allowed officers appointed in the Regular VC.

LT. GEN. BRUCE WILL HEAD COLLEGE

Lt. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, USA, Commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., since July 1951, will retire from the Army after 37 years' service on 31 July. He will become president of the University of Houston, Texas, on 1 Sept.

A graduate of Texas A. & M. College in 1916 and recipient of an honorary Doctorate of Laws degree from that institution in April, 1946, at the same time one was conferred on President (then General of the Army) Dwight D. Eisenhower, General Bruce was WW II commander of the 77th Infantry Division, which fought the Guam Operation. He led the division on its famous end run behind enemy lines on Leyte, its capture of the fortress of Iwo Shima, and in the bitter fighting on Okinawa.

General Bruce served as the first Governor of Hokkaido, Japan, while the 77th Division occupied that island and took command of the 7th Division in the Occupation Forces of Korea.

In October 1947, General Bruce became Deputy Commander of the Fourth Army at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and became Commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk in July 1951.

Lt. Gen. Bruce

A More Promising Chance For United Action— COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

THE "friendly meeting without agenda" which will take place at the White House a week hence, when Sir Winston Churchill and his Foreign Minister, Mr. Anthony Eden, reach Washington once more, may make possible some really important planning. For, whatever the studied vagueness of that non-agenda description, this meeting will permit the high-level political discussion of realities which has been gravely needed in the free world since the Indo-China situation began last spring to deteriorate at breakneck speed and the unhappy French nation, largely on that issue, at last witnessed the long-expected upset of the Laniel government. The Pentagon lately welcomed the ranking military officers of Britain, France, Australia, and New Zealand, who for something over a week conducted a purely military discussion on Far East matters, without commitments, with Admiral Robert B. Carney representing the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff. It was a useful discussion within its enforced limits, and helps form a basis of substantial military information for meetings which are to follow. But the discussions which really count are those of the political chiefs, whose judgments are guided in appropriate areas by their military advisers and whose decisions then provide mandates for the military.

THE BRITISH VISITORS do not alone constitute an assembly capable of arriving at any such united action as President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles began urging months ago for the halting of Red aggression in Southeast Asia. The hoped for assembly would have included France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, the Philippines, and Indo-China itself once that confused community reaches the degree of independence which makes its assertions important, and also when it reaches the community state of mind of wishing freedom enough to help fight for it. But there are good reasons for moving toward an ultimate goal by stages, and particularly for making sure at the outset of an understanding that is complete between ourselves and our sturdiest ally; only if that is established, good sense tells us, can we with confidence proceed in the recruitment of our other needed allies. In the coming meeting there is a suggestion of those notable conferences of thirteen years ago, in which a younger Churchill participated, and from which grew the great western alliance of World War II.

IT HARDLY NEEDS SAYING that it would have been good to hold such a conference months ago, when President Eisenhower sought a compact for united action in Southeast Asia, and when Dien Bien Phu conceivably might have been saved. Hard things have happened in the interval. Dien Bien Phu is lost, and the whole rich delta about Hanoi is unmistakably endangered, and Laniel's government is out, and French uncertainty is magnified. If united action could have come about in April, these things and others might have been averted. But that is easy to say. The fact is that Sir Winston's insistence upon first trying at Geneva to reach a Far East agreement with the Red world, rather than against it, was a considered decision; it is most doubtful that the canny old prime minister had any greater illusions than did we about Moscow's sincerity, or about the possibility that under any conditions Molotov would have permitted his Asiatic allies to come to agreement, so determined is the communist world on disagreement and disorder. But that is not all. Sir Winston has at home an opposition which is as aggressive as it is wrongheaded, and it is fair to say that, had Sir Winston and President Eisenhower pushed ahead with an announced anti-Communist compact for the Far East, without even seeking a voluntary world-compact of a reliable character (an ideal not exactly imminent), or without waiting for Russia to consider it—had that been done, it is certain that the opposition in Parliament would have been howling, and it is not impossible that some of our home-grown breastbeaters would have been in like anguish. The value of Geneva was that the western world did make a long and patient quest for peace, and Russia thwarted it, and the neutral world saw that this was the case. Now Geneva is past, and—despite the grave events which have befallen us—there is a less deluded West which can pick up at this point. Next week's meeting is an important start.

ADMIRAL ARTHUR RADFORD, with his usual care pointing out that statesmen make policies and military men undertake to enforce them, made an impressive speech in Los Angeles on Wednesday upon the threats we face and will face for years to come, and upon the importance of collective action in our national and international security. It was a strong statement in behalf of a Southeast Asia compact to halt a threat which Admiral Radford holds to be against India and the Philippines and Australia and New Zealand as well as against Southeast Asia itself and, for that matter, the western Pacific as a whole. He quoted Demosthenes' remarks in 348 B.C., just after Philip of Macedon had seized and eliminated Olynthus in his step-by-step campaign for the domination of all Greece. "It is shameful to say afterward (said Demosthenes) 'Who would have thought that this could happen? We really should have done this or that.' The people of Olynthus could mention plenty of things which, if foreseen, would have saved them from destruction. . . . While the boat is undamaged, then is the time to show vigilance." And the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs in applying that doctrine to our times remarked "This seems like good advice. Who would have thought that in the short space of 15 years Central Europe would be divided, China would become communist, Red forces would invade Korea and now Laos and Cambodia? . . . Certainly this is not the time for free nations to do nothing, just hoping for something better to turn up. The negative always seems an easier path, but difficulties sometimes will fade away when confronted with positive action. We shall not find peace by retreating from danger."

THE DUTCH GOVERNMENT this week decided to cut the conscription term from 20 to 18 months, effective 1 August. It is not surprising, for Belgium lately cut from 21 to 18 months. This will mean that the Netherlands' one active division will be kept at 87 instead of 100 per cent, but there is assurance that the deficit can be promptly corrected, and that the additional four reserve divisions will be as promptly mobilizable, thanks to the reservists trained since 1950. General Gruenther, here fleetingly from SHAPE at the last week-end, evidenced no new anxiety on this score, and no undue alarm about NATO's prospects in general.

ONE DOWN AND TWO TO GO is the Army division count as of today, 19 June. In a ceremony at San Francisco, colors of the 40th Infantry Division of the National Guard will be returned to California, as earlier the colors of the 45th Infantry Division were returned from Korea to Oklahoma. On 15 June, the Army reactivated the 4th Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Tex., which will be commanded by Maj. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, former head of the MAAG in Indo-China. Fiscal '55 plans call for the Army to lose 2 more divisions, presumably from the Far East. However, speculation grows that plans may be changed, that the Army will ultimately be given funds for at least one more division, or else be told to squeeze an 18th from available manpower.

THE STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND will transmit to USAF Headquarters next month a detailed plan on steps which should be taken to raise career attractiveness. An outgrowth of the Womble Report, the SAC study will be compiled by a special committee, which is being assisted by top airmen at SAC NonCom Academies.

RADIO BROADCASTS for troops overseas are described by Senator Russell (D-Ga.) as "the most important morale factor we have." The ranking minority member of the Armed Services Committee says he is willing to "cut off a few guns" in the defense budget, but he is opposed to any curtailment of football and World Series broadcasts to U. S. forces abroad. Defense witnesses assured him that no radio cuts are planned.

WITH CHARACTERISTIC CANDOR, Defense Sec'y Wilson said this week that the Marines are a "100 per cent-owned subsidiary of the Navy." He made this remark during Senate hearings on legislation asking more Assistant Secretaries for the Services. Mr. Wilson said the Marines were a separate Service, but were under the Navy Department. Marines will like the "separate Service" tack, will be disturbed by the "subsidiary" status.

ANXIOUS TO SHOW SENATORS why the Assistant Secretary Bill is essential, energetic Mr. Wilson trotted about the hearing room delivering charts and other pertinent documents to the Senators. Commented Armed Services Committee Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass): "This is the first time we ever had a Secretary of Defense as an errand boy."

SERVICE INDIVIDUALISMS is demonstrated in the pending legislation. If Congress gives the O.K., the Army will have an AsstSec for Manpower and Reserve Forces (as at present); the Navy's counterpart will be the AsstSec for Personnel and Reserve Forces; in the Air Force, he will be called AsstSec for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve Forces. All will be responsible for people.

ON THE PROCUREMENT FRONT, Service semantics also shows unification independence. There would be an Army Asst. Sec. for Logistics; a Navy Asst. Sec. for Material, and an Air Force Asst. Sec. for Materiel.

IT'S ALMOST TWICE AS SAFE to work on Army Corps of Engineer projects than on construction industry jobs as a whole. Newly released figures show that CE contractor employees suffered 9.16 disabling injuries per million man hours; last published rate for the industry is 17.34. The CE rate of 0.22 fatal injuries per million man hours compares with the industry total of 2.48.

FATE OF THE NICKEL COFFEE at Service exchanges will be in new hands next month. Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, outgoing Army and AF Exchange Service Chief, determined that he would protect the nickel cup of coffee as a morale-builder at all costs. He succeeded. Now it will be up to his successor, Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, to make a "command decision" on 5c coffee. It's a good bet the price will be held.

A NEW ARMY BADGE is in the works. It will be worn by graduates of the rugged Ranger Course, and will be comparable to the badge worn by paratroopers. Most new Army Regular 2d Lts. will be required to complete either the ranger or airborne course.

K.O.'D BY JACK DEMPSEY before entering military service in 1917, Lt. Col. Fred D. Wood, USAF, has just retired at Norton AFB, Calif. A boyhood chum and still a close friend of the former heavyweight champion, Colonel Wood was knocked out by Mr. Dempsey in the fourth round of a 1916 bout for fistic honors in Colorado.

BOLTS AND NUTS aren't what they used to be in the Army. As part of an across-the-board standardization program, Ordnance experts have reduced the number of standard bolts from roughly 10,500 parts on 130 drawings to 6,000 on 65 drawings. Nuts were cut from 1,500 to 800 parts. In the crane and shovel department, the Pentagon is reducing from 66 to 16 the number of models in the military system.

THE STANDARDIZATION PROGRAM has resulted in a cut from 22 to 10 in the number of types of blankets subject to repetitive procurement. An official report shows that dry batteries have been reduced from 242 to 107.

THE INFLATION PRICE TAG on military facilities showed up during newly concluded Senate action on the '55 budget. Army witnesses testified that when the 45,666 acres of Camp Pickett, Va., were acquired early in WWII, the cost was $1.1 million. Subsequently, $44.4 million was spent to adapt the land to military use and construct facilities. That's a total of $45.5 million. Replacement value for the camp, which has been inactivated, is almost double that—$87.5 million.

GROUND ACCIDENTS cost the Air Force 340,855 man-days lost in 21,467 disabling injuries during 1953, according to newly released statistics. Although a drop of 8% compared to the 1952 accident rate, last year's accident cost was put at $4,029,000. More than 6,000 motor vehicles were damaged; over 900 ground accidents damaged aircraft.

JUNE GRADUATIONS make timely the report that the U.S. Armed Forces Institute recorded its 3,000,000 enrollment in connection with a 12th anniversary celebration on 16 June.

DEPARTING MANPOWER CHIEF, Asst. SecDef Hannah considers the Armed Forces I&E program a "high priority" problem in the Defense Dept. He said this week he hopes his successor will give it close attention. Dr. Hannah relates one problem has been that the Services accord varying emphasis to I&E; Army most; Air Force next; Navy and Marine Corps least. The President is known to be interested in the program; the White House undoubtedly would exert effective leverage to win uniform Armed Forces enthusiasm for I&E should Dr. Hannah's successor suggest it.

a Force of 180,000 officers!

That's what we serve. UNITED SERVICES AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION was organized in 1922 to provide low-cost automobile and household-personal effects insurance for Commissioned and Warrant Officers of the Armed Forces, overseas or in the states. And USAA continues to grow. During 1953, 180,000 officers of all branches were USAA policyholders and shared in dividends of $4,300,000—more than one million dollars over 1952.

Because all funds are pooled for mutual protection, USAA is able to offer low-cost insurance with savings realized in annual dividends. Besides the low cost of automobile and household effects insurance plans, more officers choose USAA because claims are settled quickly, even in the most out-of-the-way places.

Policies are available for Commissioned and Warrant Officers only, who are serving in JAPAN, WESTERN EUROPE, PUERTO RICO, PHILIPPINES, or in the STATES. USAA understands the officer's problems, for it is under the constant direction and management of retired officers of the Armed Forces.

Write now for more information on how USAA can serve you . . . and save you money. We are as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA Insurance becomes effective immediately as of time and filing date of application.

Gen. Pollack Heads Depot; Gen. Snedeker To 2d Div.

Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Pollack, USMC, Director of the Marine Corps Educational Center, left Quantico, Va., on 10 June for Parris Island, S. C., where he will assume the duties of Commanding Officer of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

The former CG of the First Marine Division in Korea, he had been at Quantico since July 1953.

General Pol-lack has been instrumental in the presentation of Advance Base Problems, both in the States and overseas. He recently returned from Paris, where he was Problem Director of a presentation before several hundred NATO officers at the Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers, Europe (SHAPE).

At the same time, Brig. Gen. Edward W. Snedeker, USMC, Deputy Director of the Educational Center and the Senior School, departed to take over as Assistant Division Commander of the Second Marine Division, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

General Snedeker had been at Quantico, Va., since Apr. 1952.

Major Gen. Robert O. Bare, USMC, Director of the Marine Corps Development Center, Quantico, Va., will relieve General Pollack as Director of the Educational Center.

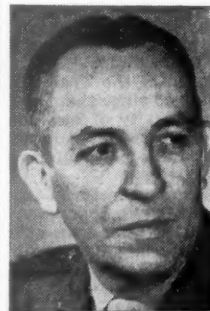

A replacement has not yet been named for General Snedeker.

"Open House" At Naval Sta.

The U. S. Naval Engineering Experiment Station, Annapolis, Md., will hold an open house on Friday and Saturday—25 and 26 June.

Marking the 50th anniversary, the station will open on the morning of the 25th with music by the Naval Academy Band and a special ceremony in honor of the occasion. After the invocation, Capt. Fred W. Walton, USN, Director of the Experiment Station, will welcome the visitors and introduce the guest speakers, among whom will be top ranking naval officials.

Open house for specialists will be held on the afternoon of the 25th. The general public will be admitted on Saturday, 26 June, from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. The Station is located on the Severn River opposite the U. S. Naval Academy.

Gen. Harper's Farewell ATRC Report

aerial combat over Korea was directly traceable to superior training of combat crews. We are far behind the Iron Curtain countries in total manpower—therefore, we must fight quantity with quality. Right now we are ahead in skilled, and potentially skilled, manpower. We must stay ahead.

Personnel who are intimately concerned with the future and present planning policies of the ATRC are not at all concerned with keeping it the biggest command in the Air Force. The size will continually fluctuate according to Air Force requirements. The continuing emphasis at the top levels, and it prevails throughout the command, is to keep the quality of the training at the peak. I like to say, "We'd rather be good than big."

When the ATRC was born in July of 1943, the job description for the Commanding General, Training Command, stated that he "will be responsible for the training of individuals in the techniques of aerial gunnery, bombing, navigation, aerial observation, and piloting military aircraft (including gliders), and in mechanical, technical, administrative, and associated subjects to meet the proficiency standards established by the Commanding General, Army Air Forces; for the administration of the basic training program; and for the administration of the aviation cadet pre-flight program, the AAF college training program, and the training of individuals at civil contract schools under his jurisdiction."

Basically, the mission of the Training Command hasn't changed since then, but the ever-growing complexity of modern combat equipment makes for training problems today that were barely imagined ten years ago.

Vast strides in development of new aircraft and electronics equipment, new concepts of aerial warfare, our own vulnerability to aerial attack via the "top of the world air routes," and the tremendously increased requirements for ground support are all adding to the immense problems of training a modern Air Force.

In a little over ten years of operation, the ATRC has reached many significant training milestones.

Item: 250,000 pilots, 51,000 navigators, 47,000 bombardiers, and over 2,000,000 technicians in the World War II years.

Item: In 1950, with the beginning of hostilities in Korea, the ATRC was called upon to expand from a small, peacetime nucleus into a full-powered training organization without sacrificing quality. During fiscal year 1951 the command came through with 2,100 pilots, 3,575 navigator-bombardiers, 300 instrument-pilot instructors, 50 fighter gunnery instructors, 80 Air Force helicopter pilots, and 139 liaison and 103 helicopter pilots for the Army Field Forces. In addition, the command turned out 124,350 technicians and 635 non-rated Air Force officers.

During fiscal year 1953 the ATRC expanded to over 300,000 people with 42 bases, four headquarters, and a mobile training group operating at locations all over the world. Reduced personnel requirements have caused a reduction in numbers, but the quality of the finished product remains high.

The Training Command is continually conducting research to improve the training courses. Just as industry changes with new requirements, so does the Training Command. New equipment, new concepts, new requirements—all are contributing to drastic changes in the training program. But the changes are careful and studied ones—changes which will turn out a jet pilot, a jet mechanic or a clerk-typist who is even better prepared than his brother airmen of yesterday.

The United States may not have the biggest Air Force, but it must have the best. That is the challenge.

New Army Chaplain Chief Sees Recruiting Young Clergymen as "Most Urgent Problem"

Recruiting young clergymen for the Reserve and the National Guard is the most urgent problem faced by the Army Chaplain Corps, according to Army Chief of Chaplains (Maj. Gen.) Patrick J. Ryan.

In the face of personnel cut-backs, Chaplain Ryan has called upon the Military Chaplains Association to assist in building up the Reserve strength of the Corps.

At present, there are approximately 1450 Army Chaplains on active duty. It is expected that the Corps will be reduced to about 1200 by the end of fiscal year 1955.

During WWII, the peak strength of the Corps was 8280, reached in August 1945.

In order to meet the need for a strong Chaplain Reserve, the Department of the Army, for the first time, has authorized commissioning of students of theology as second lieutenants. Those who enter the program are required to sign a statement that they will serve a two-year tour of duty.

After completing their normal schooling they are sent to Ft. Slocum, N. Y., for an eight-week course of military training and promoted to first lieutenant, the lowest rank in which Chaplains serve on active duty in the Corps.

During fiscal year 1953, more than 17,400,000 servicemen and their dependents were in attendance at services conducted by members of the Army's Chaplain Corps.

Since the inauguration of the Army's Character Guidance program in 1947, which was approved by all faiths, there has been a noticeable decrease in delinquency, Chaplain Ryan said in an interview, but noted that it would be difficult to measure the advantages which have accrued to the Army as a result of the program. "There is no practical way to know that the good have become better. It is usually only the bad cases that get much attention," the Chaplain Chief said.

As part of the Character Guidance Program, which has been adopted by the Navy and the Air Force, every soldier who enters the service is interviewed by a Chaplain as part of his processing. Further, every man is given at least one hour's instruction in ethical teachings each month.

In this connection, the Army Chaplain Corps has prepared a series of 52 pamphlets devoted to basic ethical principles which serve as a guide of instruction for Chaplains in the field.

The series has been so successful, Chaplain Ryan reports, that institutions outside the services have made numerous requests for them. The pamphlets have been made available to the public at the Government Printing Office, Washington, 25, D. C.

During fiscal year 1954, 68,300 character guidance lectures were delivered to a soldier audience of 9,600,000.

The Army will celebrate the 179th anniversary of the establishment of the Chaplaincy on 29 July. It was on that date in 1775 that the Continental Congress passed a resolution establishing the pay of Chaplains as $20 per month.

From this beginning the Chaplaincy has grown into the present day organization of more than 1400 clergymen of the Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths who serve wherever American troops are stationed.

Chaplains have served in every conflict in which American troops have participated. During WW I, 2,363 Chaplains were commissioned. During WW II, 8,896 Chaplains served on active duty.

Sixty-three Army Chaplains were killed in action during WW II. Fifteen were killed while detained by the enemy, four died in Japanese prison camps, and 264 were wounded in action.

For services in that war 1,783 Chaplains were awarded 2,453 decorations for heroism and exceptional service. They are: Distinguished Service Cross, 18; Distinguished Service Medal, 4; Silver Star, 176; Legion of Merit, 112; Soldier's Medal, 29; Bronze Star, 1,381; Air Medal, 10; Commendation Ribbon, 263; Purple Heart, 396; and Foreign Decorations, 64.

During the Korean War, seven Chaplains were killed in action; three died while detained by the enemy and one is missing and presumed dead. In that campaign 411 Chaplains received 508 decorations as follows: Bronze Star, 348; Commendation Ribbon, 69; Distinguished Service Cross, 2; Legion of Merit, 17; Purple Heart, 31; Soldier's Medal, 5; and Silver Star, 38.

CHAPLAIN RYAN was named Chief of Chaplains on 1 May.

He served in the Archdiocese of St. Paul, Minn. until November 1928 when he was commissioned a Chaplain in the Regular Army and assigned to Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

During WWII, the Chaplain Chief served with the Third Infantry Division in North Africa. In February 1943 he was appointed Chief Chaplain of the Fifth Army and served in combat in Sicily and Italy.

Assigned to Army Headquarters in July 1945, as Director of Plans and Training in the Office of the Chief of Chaplains, he later was named Deputy Chief of Chaplains. He became Chaplain of the Sixth Army at the Presidio of San Francisco, in September 1948 and in July 1952 was reassigned as Deputy Chief of Chaplains at Army Headquarters.

Chaplain Ryan is the holder of the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal, and the Army Commendation Ribbon. His decorations also include the Brazilian Medalha de Guerre and the Order of the British Empire.

Capt. Erickson To Retire, Famed 'Copter Expert

Capt. Frank A. Erickson, USCG, Chief of the Search and Rescue Section, Operations Division, Third District, will retire on 1 July, after a career of 29 years.

A pioneer and one of the foremost experts on helicopters, he was stationed at Pearl Harbor when it was struck by the Japanese in 1941.

After service as an enlisted man, Captain Erickson entered the U. S. Coast Guard Academy in 1928.

He won his wings in 1935 at Pensacola and later served aboard large Coast Guard cutters as aviation officer, flying amphibian planes in search and rescue missions.

His introduction to the helicopter came in 1942 when he was assigned to the Coast Guard Air Station at Floyd Bennett Field in Brooklyn, N. Y. He worked closely with Igor Sikorsky in increasing the 'copter's utility in rescue work. Since that time, Captain Erickson has been closely identified with the development of rotary-wing aircraft. He is a leader in the development of hydraulic hoisting gear, flotation gear, rescue baskets, and rescue harnesses which are designed to carry stretcher cases by helicopter.

After leaving the service, he intends to work in private industry, concentrating on the development of instrument flying and safety devices for rotary-wing craft.

Medal of Honor Awarded Posthumously to Engineer

The Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to Cpl. Dan D. Schoonover, who was killed last July in Korea.

The 19-year-old corporal was in charge of an engineer demolition squad attached to an infantry company when intense fighting broke out near Pork Chop Hill. Unable to carry out his appointed mission, Corporal Schoonover employed his unit as a rifle squad.

After his squad had been relieved by another Infantry company, Corporal Schoonover remained with the new unit and continued to fight as a rifleman. He was killed by enemy mortar fire at his post.

Marine Scholarship Open

The first scholarship from the First Marine Division Association Scholarship Fund will be awarded this Summer, according to Brig. Gen. Edward W. Snedeker, USMC, Scholarship Fund Chairman.

The scholarship will be $400 per year and must be applied to academic or vocational training beyond the high school level.

Eligible for the scholarship are children of those who served in the First Marine Division, the First Marine Brigade, or in an attached unit, and who, while serving, or later, lost their lives in service, or as a direct result of service.

Due to time limitations, applications for this year's award will be closed at an early date. Those desiring to apply for the coming school year should submit their application immediately to: First Marine Division Association, PO Box 84, Alexandria, Va.

The Annual Reunion of the First Marine Division Association will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York City, 6-8 August.

Marine Corps Gets Seal

variations of the seal have been given consideration.

At present, there are a number of unofficial seals in use by different Marine Corps commands.

The new seal will make use of the traditional American bald eagle, with wings outspread, standing on a globe depicting the Western Hemisphere. A scroll, held in the eagle's mouth, will read "Semper Fidelis." A fowl anchor will be shown behind the globe. This bronze colored emblem will be centered on a scarlet background which will be encircled by a Navy blue band. At the outer edge of the blue band will be a gold rope; gold lettering on the blue circular band will read—"Department of the Navy, United States Marine Corps."

tion Plan high priority upon his return from the Far East.

This was not particularly surprising, since he had given his approval to Navy and Air Force Reorganization Plans before leaving for his overseas inspection.

The Army Reorganization Plan, however, encountered a rockier road.

It was first proposed by a civilian Advisory Committee, named by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, in a report submitted last December. In an unexpected development, the Committee was reconvened in January after turning in its findings and made what have been described as minor changes in terminology.

This was done at the request of either Mr. Wilson or his then Deputy Defense Secretary, Roger M. Kyes.

Weeks and months went by without any definitive action on the Army plan. It became an open secret at the Pentagon that the Advisory Committee's Report was not in accord with the thinking of high Defense authorities. The Defense Department was not pleased either with criticism of alleged interference by Defense Assistant Secretaries in administration of the Army.

Significant in connection with the newly given approval to the Army's plan, which has been modified from the original Advisory Committee's report, is the fact that on 1 May former Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson succeeded Mr. Kyes as Deputy Defense Secretary.

The forthcoming activation of a Continental Command is linked to the Defense Department's stepped-up emphasis on continental defense planning and desire for accelerated training in event of a mobilization requirement.

The Continental Command will supervise activities of all Armies in the Zone of Interior and will be charged also with directing most Army training.

THE JOURNAL has speculated during recent weeks that General Maxwell D. Taylor, present Eighth Army commander who has completed the normal 16-month tour in Korea, may be summoned to fill the new billet.

Another possibility is the elevation to four-star rank of Lt. Gen. John Dahlquist, present Field Forces Chief.

Creation of a three-star billet for a Deputy Chief of Staff for Supply marks a change from the original recommendation of the Advisory Committee.

This group proposed that a Vice Chief of Staff for Supply be named, with four-star rank.

The Reorganization Plan may see Lt. Gen. Williston Palmer, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, advanced to be Deputy Chief of Staff, supervising the activities of the Technical Services.

As a Deputy Chief of Staff, he would, of course, have considerably more prestige and authority than as G-4.

The likelihood is that the G-4 billet will be downgraded to a two-star job.

It is understood that at one time during the discussions between the Army and Defense Department, strong pressure was applied to channel Army thinking towards possible adoption of a system closer to that of the Navy.

This is described as the "direct vertical" approach, wherein the Navy Bureau in Washington deal directly with field activities, largely by-passing intermediate commanders.

The Army is opposed to this system, believes instead that orders should be transmitted by commanders in the field.

On the basis of his experience as Navy Secretary, it can be assumed that Mr. Anderson has advocated that the Army modify its procedure more in line with that of the Navy.

However, it is now apparent that Secretary Stevens and General Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, have convinced their superiors that Army requirements are different than those of the Navy.

When the full Reorganization Plan is made public, it will show however, that military members of the General Staff will be under more direct civilian control than is the case at the present time. This has been urged by Mr. Wilson's top advisors.

With four Assistant Secretaries, it can be expected that each will have a specific area in which he will exercise direct control over high-ranking military staff officials. This is certain to reduce somewhat the direct responsibility of these officers to the Chief of Staff.

Such a result will be in line with Mr. Wilson's stress on boosting civilian control, but it appears to be at odds with the Advisory Committee's recommendation that the Chief of Staff be considered as the "general manager" of the Army.

The tipoff that Secretary Wilson has given the green-light to the Army Reorganization came during recent testimony on Capitol Hill. He said he had approved plans to reorganize the Army, as well as the other Services, in accord with President Eisenhower's Reorganization Plan No. 6 for the Defense Department.

Mr. Wilson gave no details below the Assistant Secretary level.

The Defense Secretary presumably felt that reorganization at lower echelons was entirely a Pentagon responsibility.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

General and Mrs. Klein Honored—

The Ft. McNair Officers' Club was the scene of a reception on 16 June, honoring Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John A. Klein. Sponsored by the Adjutant General Corps officers and their ladies, the event also marked the 179th Anniversary of the Adjutant General's Corps. Major General Klein took the oath of office as The Adjutant General of the Army on 1 June to become the 50th incumbent since the founding of the Corps in 1776.

White orchids were worn by Mrs. John A. Klein and Mrs. Herbert M. Jones as they stood beside their husbands to receive the more than 300 guests who attended the reception. The guest list included General and Mrs. Charles A. Bolté, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edward F. Wifsell, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert N. Young, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John H. Stokes, Jr., and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert B. Powell.

Gen. Griffin's Son An MD—

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Martin E. Griffin, MC, USA, were in Iowa City last week to attend the graduation of their son, Martin E. Griffin, Jr., from the College of Medicine, University of Iowa. Upon graduation, Lieutenant Griffin will intern at Letterman Army Hospital, Presidio of California, San Francisco. His father commands Fitzsimons Army Hospital at Denver, Colo.

Young Davies Enters USMA—

Thomas H. Davies, Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Thomas H. Davies, USA-Ret., has qualified for entrance to West Point, and will report 6 July. Mr. Davies is a graduate of Sewanee Military Academy, Tenn., and Sullivan's Preparatory School, Washington, D. C.

Alan Jennings Studies Abroad—

Alan K. Jennings, 17, son of Col. and Mrs. William E. Jennings of 409 Dickman Rd., Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., has left to study in Denmark. Colonel Jennings is Chief of the Veterinary Branch of the Medical Field Service School at Brooke Army Medical Center.

Alan will go to Copenhagen where he will study writing and other forms of Danish culture at Ingeborg Steeman's Holiday Course for foreign students.

After about a month of study in Copenhagen, Alan will move on to Askov for six months at the Danish Folk High School, from 1 Nov. to next 1 May. The school teaches the history and traditions of the Danes, and other subjects such as Danish economy.

Alan's mother is a native of Denmark, and he will visit relatives while studying there. On completion of his studies, he will tour Germany, France, and Belgium.

Upon his return next Summer, Alan will work on a degree in forestry at Colorado Agricultural and Mechanical College at Fort Collins.

Degree for Gen. Whitlock—

Maj. Gen. Lester J. Whitlock, USA, Commanding General, U. S. Army Caribbean, participated in the 115th commencement exercises of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, held on 7 June in which an honorary Doctor of Laws degree was conferred upon him by university officials.

A native of Piqua, Ohio, General Whitlock attended Miami University and received a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1914.

Weddings and Engagements

Angeles, took place at the Chapel of the First Methodist Church at Santa Ana, Calif., on 2 May. The afternoon double-ring rites were conducted by Rev. Louis C. Kirby.

The bride was escorted to the candle-light altar by Mr. C. Fay Hutchison. She was attired in a gown of white marquisette with a scooped neckline and a very full-tiered skirt. Her matching fingertip-length veil was held by a coronet headpiece of lace and marquisette. Stephanotis and white orchids were carried by the bride.

Mrs. Merville W. Hutchison, sister of the bride was matron of honor and her only attendant.

The groom's brother, M/Sgt. Robert W. Thompson, USMCR, was best man. Ushers were Mr. Charles L. Powell of Glendale, Calif., and Mr. Merville W. Hutchison, brother-in-law of the bride. Flower girl was little Diana Reed; ring-bearer was Richard Hutchison; and candle-lighter was James Hutchison, both nephews of the bride.

The newlyweds received 75 guests at a garden reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison in Santa Ana.

The bride studied at Butler University, Indianapolis, before making her residence in California. Lieutenant Thompson is a graduate of Carthage College, and also attended the University of Houston. He is stationed with the 6th Division, Hq., Ft. Ord, Calif., where the couple are making their home.

YOCUM-LARKIN—The marriage of Miss Virginia Madolyn Larkin, daughter of Col. Alwyn V. Larkin, USA, and Mrs. Larkin of Drexel Hill, Pa., to Mr. John Duncan Yocum, son of Mrs. A. Duncan Yocum, jr., of Drexel Hill, took place 12 June in Saint Dorothy's Church, Drexel Hill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white ballerina-length gown of scalloped lace over nylon tulle with a fitted lace bodice featuring a scalloped neckline of net trimmed with pearls and iridescent sequins and long, tapering sleeves. A small, fitted hat beaded with pearls and sequins to match her gown had a hand-rolled fingertip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and gardenias centered with an orchid corsage.

Miss Jane Barrett of Washington, D. C., was maid of honor and Miss Diane M. Larkin, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid.

The best man was the groom's brother-in-law, Mr. Donald J. Peters of Drexel Hill; ushers were Mr. J. Richard Sterling of Abington and Mr. Raymond L. Becker of Wilmington.

A wedding breakfast for bridal party and members of immediate family was held in the Warwick Hotel, Philadelphia. Following the honeymoon, the couple will reside at 401 Madison Road, Springfield, Pa.

LIEBER-ROBINSON—Miss Joan Mahala Robinson, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. George L. Robinson of 6820 Narrows Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., was married 10 June in the West Point Cadet Chapel to

Lt. Albert Carl Lieber, jr., son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Albert Carl Lieber of Centerville, Md. The ceremony was performed by Chaplain Alan Gordon Gripe.

A reception was held in the Pershing Room of Cullum Hall.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported silk mouslin-de-soire fashioned with a portrait neckline, short sleeves, fitted bodice, and very bouffant skirt terminating in a cathedral train. The fingertip-length veil of imported French illusion tulle was fastened to a cap of seed pearls and studded with rhinestones. Her bouquet was white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Margaret Reybold Yount, daughter of Maj. Gen.

ANDREWS AFB, D. C.—The Officers' Wives' Club held their last meeting for the summer, a luncheon, on 15 June, at the Officers' Club. The main business of the meeting was the induction of the above newly elected officers—left to right, back row; Mrs. Max A. Wickam, treasurer, Mrs. Frank M. Detrick, 2d vice-president, Mrs. Edward G. Pfeiffer, jr., corresponding secretary. Front row: Mrs. Carroll J. Victor, first vice-president, Mrs. Carl J. Vail, jr., assistant treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Smith, honorary president, Mrs. William E. Nix, president, and Mrs. Richard Kandt, recording secretary.

Paul F. Yount, Chief of Transportation, and Mrs. Yount of Alexandria, Va.

The bridesmaids were Miss Anne Lieber, sister of the groom, Miss Johanna Ruby of Rome, N. Y., Miss Elizabeth Billingsley of West Point, N. Y., and Mrs. William K. Gearan of Ft. Knox, Ky.

The bride is a graduate of Utica Free Academy, and Katherine Gibbs School in New York.

The groom is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Class of '54. The best man was George B. Calhoun of Florence, Colo. Ushers were John N. Koun, Lt. Louis G. Michael, jr., Warren T. Palmer of Middletown, Ohio, and John M. Stark, jr., all classmates of the groom, and Ens. William E. Hill.

After a wedding trip in the Poconos, the Adirondacks and Maryland, the couple will reside at Ft. Benning, Ga., where the groom is assigned.

PRESTON-BAREFOOT—On 5 June, Capt. Helen R. Barefoot, WMSC, USA, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barefoot of Pittsburgh, Pa., became the bride of Capt. William G. Preston, USA-Ret., at the Post Chapel, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

The ceremony was performed by Chaplain (Col.) Edward T. Donahue, Chief of Chaplains, Sixth Army, with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Obradovich of San Francisco, Calif., as the only attendants.

The bride wore a pink linen dress which was adorned at the neckline and waist with seed pearls. A matching pink hat with face veil and navy accessories completed the ensemble. She carried a prayer book topped with a small bridal bouquet of stephanotis and white carnations.

After being graduated from Carnegie Institute of Technology, where she majored in dietetics, the bride served a year's internship at Brooke Army Medical Center before being commissioned as a hospital dietitian. She is now assigned as Chief, Food Service Division, Army Hospital, Camp Stoneman, Calif.

Captain Preston, who attended San Francisco State College and who is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley was retired from active service in July 1951 for physical disability. From the end of WWII until his retirement he had been a member of the Counter Intelligence Corps. He is now an Administrative Analyst in the office of the County Administrator of Alameda County at Oakland, Calif.

They are making their home at 4182 Greenwood Ave., Oakland, Calif.

STEFFEK-WHITTMORE—Col. Kenneth S. Whittmore, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Whittmore of Lazy Log Farm, Raymond, Miss., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Ann Whittmore, to Mr. Linhart Marion Steffek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Steffek of Needville, Tex. The double-ring ceremony was performed in the Annunciation Church, Houston, Tex., on 29 May, with Father Morrell officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace over slipper satin and carried a bouquet of carnations. Her veil of illusion was fingertip-length, falling from a headpiece of satin and rhinestones.

Mrs. A. E. Steffek was matron of honor and Miss Margaret McCay was bridesmaid.

The best man was Mr. Harold Vosloh, and acting as groomsman was Mr. A. E. Steffek. Ushers were Mr. Arthur Whittmore, and Mr. Lowry Barfield.

A reception at the Ben Milam Hotel in Houston followed the ceremony, and a second reception was held 4 June at the Lazy Log Farm.

The bride attended the Oat of Don School, Sarasota, Fla., and was graduated from Hinds Junior College, Raymond, Miss.

Mr. Steffek was educated in Needville and Richmond, Tex., and served three years each in the Merchant Marine and Coast Guard.

After a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., and Raymond, Miss., the couple will live in Houston, where Mr. Steffek is employed by the Shell Oil Company.

MAGLIN-SCHLEGEL—Miss Alma M.

RAdm. Boone to USNA VAdm. Joy Retires 1 July

RAdm. Walter E. Boone, USN, currently serving on the Joint Strategic Committee of the JCS, will assume command of the U. S. Naval Academy during the middle of August.

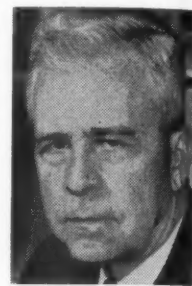

He will relieve VAdm. C. Turner Joy, USN, who retires on 1 July.

During the interim, RAdm. Charles A. Buchanan, USN, Commandant of Midshipmen, will be in command.

A Naval aviator, Admiral Boone served as Executive Officer of the aircraft carrier Enterprise and later commanded the carrier Yorktown during the war in the Pacific. His postwar duties included assignments as Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Strategic Plans); Commander, Carrier Division Five; and Acting Commander, U. S. Naval Forces, Eastern Atlantic.

Admiral Joy, the 37th Superintendent of the Naval Academy, was appointed to that post in August 1952. Before that, he represented the United Nations as senior delegate to the Korean Armistice Conference while serving as Commander, U. S. Naval Forces, Far East.

After his retirement, Admiral and Mrs. Joy, the former Martha Ann Chess of Pittsburgh, Pa., will make their home in La Jolla, Calif.

Vice Adm. Joy

Col. Hundley In I&E Post

Col. Preston J. Hundley has been assigned to Fifth Army Headquarters, Chicago, as Troop Information and Education Officer. He replaced Col. Elbert T. Mackey, who has been confined to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D. C., for the past month.

Colonel Hundley previously was stationed at Ft. Riley, Kans., where he was chief of staff of the 10th Infantry (Training) Division.

Schlegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schlegel, was married to Capt. William C. Maglin, AUS, son of Mrs. Mary C. Maglin and Maj. Gen. William H. Maglin, USA, on 12 June at the Memorial Chapel, Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

The bride's gown was of white nylon lace over satin with a bouffant skirt coming to a short circular train.

After a double-ring ceremony in which Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Robert J. Sherry gave the marriage vows, the newlyweds passed under the traditional arch of sabers.

Attendants to the bride were Mrs. Kenneth Hepler, matron of honor, the Misses Ruby Long and Ruby Reed, bridesmaids. Capt. John W. Larsen was best man. The ushers were Maj. Raymond Saunders and Capt. John Billings.

The couple will reside in Washington, D. C., after a honeymoon in Miami, Fla. Captain Maglin is assigned with the Armed Services Police Detachment.

Ft. Knox Women's Club Ends Season's Work With Displays, Elections and Awards

■ FT. KNOX, KY. Displays elections and awards gave a festive air to the final meeting of the Ft. Knox Women's Club, marking the termination of its 1953-54 activities.

The elections resulted in the voting into office of President Mrs. Percy Brown, Vice President Mrs. Alexander Miller, Second Vice President Mrs. Glenn Pillsbury, Secretary Mrs. Glenn Greener and Treasurer Mrs. Nick Perlmutter. Mrs. Brown replaces Mrs. Clark Webber, who has held the post for the past year.

Entertaining displays of the creative accomplishments of the Special Interest Groups were mounted within miniature stalls around one end of the club diningroom. These spoke exceedingly well for the apparent interest of participants in courses offered members in ceramics, toile painting, language courses and the other 15 special interest groups. It was noted that of the 416 members in the club, 350 actively participated in one or more of the Special Groups.

To members who had volunteered their time and ingenuity and were considered by the board to have contributed outstanding service toward the dramatic, financial, and entertainment success of this year's club, awards in the form of personalized charm bracelet medals were presented by Mrs. John H. Collier, wife of the Commanding General of The Armored Center. Comprising this group were Mrs. R. J. Adamson, Mrs. D. Aston, Mrs. C. B. Brown, Mrs. P. Brown, Mrs. L. Curry, Mrs. J. Dix, Mrs. E. Fogler, Mrs. B. McK. Greeley, Mrs. G. Labadie, Mrs. W. J. Landry, Mrs. G. McElmurray, Mrs. J. Spann, Mrs. D. M. McMains, Mrs. H. Paris, Mrs. G. Pillsbury, Mrs. P. Ritchie, Mrs. I. T. Shaw, Mrs. C. Turner, and Mrs. G. Von Halban, publicity chairman who has done a particularly outstanding task this past season.

The success of this year's membership is most vividly pointed up by the list of its gifts—to the hospital, two electrically cooled drinking fountains; to the post school, reproductions of paintings by the old Masters; and to the club itself, a handsome silver tea service and coffee service for the exclusive use of future members of the club.

The most popular award of the day, though, came when Mrs. Webber presented Mrs. Collier, honorary president of the Club, with a silver bowl and a framed montage of her (Mrs. Collier's) past activities during her two years' association with the club and Ft. Knox. The montage was designed by Mrs. David Aston.

Blood Drive Aid Praised

■ CHICAGO, ILL. At a recent meeting of the Cook County Council American Legion, Lt. Col. Russell P. Bonasso, former Commanding Officer of the 49th AAA Gun Battalion and present executive officer of the 22d AAA Gp, headquarters for the Chicago antiaircraft defense, was presented a Resolution of Appreciation for his cooperation in the Blood Donor Program.

Colonel Bonasso was assigned to the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Operations, Department of the Army from 1948-1952.

Mrs. Henderson Elected

■ ANN ARBOR, MICH. Mrs. William J. Henderson has been elected president of the Armed Forces Officers' Wives' Club of the University of Michigan.

Other officers are: Mrs. John H. Jacobsmeier, vice-president; Mrs. Henry Nixon, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter J. Koral, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Carl D. Gould, treasurer.

The committee chairmen are: Mesdames Charlie Barron, bridge chairman; G. C. Williams, Jr., party chairman; George Hozler, program chairman; Arthur Haas, card and telephone chairman; Montie Davis and Jennings Beck, hospitality chairman; Wilson Roderick, housing chairman; and John Reilly, welfare chairman.

CONCURRENT TRAVEL

Concurrent travel of Army dependents to Europe is expected to begin late this Fall or early Winter, an Army spokesman said this week in response to an inquiry.

He reported that every effort is being made to initiate concurrent travel as soon as possible.

Defense officials have cited the separate travel of military families as a major morale problem and during recent weeks have told of efforts to alleviate this situation, wherever housing conditions permit.

Honor Brig. Gen. Haynes

■ CHICAGO. The Silver Star, to Brig. Gen. Loyal M. Haynes, Acting Chief of the Illinois Military District, was one of four awards conferred by Lt. Gen. W. B. Kean, Commanding General of Fifth Army, in a group ceremony at the Army headquarters here recently. The award to General Haynes was for gallantry in action on the Korean battlefield in 1950.

The other awards were: First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit, for outstanding service in Korea, to Col. Carl Deuter; Army Commendation Ribbon, for meritorious service in Korea, to Maj. Robert L. McCrory; and Army Commendation Ribbon, for meritorious service in Korea, to M/Sgt. David W. Barnard.

Busy Month At Hickam

■ HICKAM AFB, T.H. Eight million pounds of air passengers and vital cargo were transported to or through this base last month, establishing the best monthly record for this year, according to Col. Richard T. Kight, Wing Commander.

One thousand MATS and other military aircraft were serviced during this period when over 20,000 passengers entered the busy military terminal.

Of the 20,000 passengers, 1,118 were hospital patients transported by air evacuation.

Col. Holley New Base CofS

■ LA ROCHELLE, FRANCE. Col. James E. Holley, La Rochelle District commander since his arrival in Com Z last August, has been named chief of staff of Base Section by Maj. Gen. O. P. Newman, CG. He replaces Col. Justin W. Stoll, whose new assignment is at Headquarters Communications Zone, Orleans.

Mrs. Holley and their two sons, Richard and Robert, will arrive in La Rochelle in July. Their eldest son, 2d Lt. James P. Holley, is stationed in Korea.

MRS. WATKINS HEADS WIVES AT BLISS

■ FT. BLISS, TEX. Mrs. T. H. Watkins has been installed president of the Officers' Wives' Club for the 1954-55 club year, succeeding Mrs. Hobart Hewett.

Taking office along with Mrs. Watkins are Mrs. John H. Kochevar, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Earl Heathcote, 2d vice-president; Mrs. Arthur G. Kiel, 3d vice-president; Mrs. Daniel A. O'Connor, secretary; Mrs. Joseph C. Moore, assistant secretary; Mrs. T. H. Barfield, treasurer; and Mrs. Michael Halliday, assistant treasurer.

New chairmen of standing committees and their co-chairmen are as follows: Mesdames B. G. Oberlin and George L. Alexander, program; William H. Bach, projects; C. B. Leek, Dale Morgan, and Roy C. Cowden, membership; George E. Richardson and J. T. Harris, Jr., Thrift Shop; Jesse Thomas, food; Bowen Smith, decorations; Donald Lang and Steven Conner, publicity; Dean Herman and Paul Hodnett, hospitality; and H. E. Osthus, nominating.

Husband and Wife On Duty

■ FT. RICHARDSON, ALASKA.—Brig. Gen. John R. Noyes, Adjutant General of Alaska, had a husband and wife team on his hands as the 207th and 208th Infantry Battalions of the Alaska National Guard met here for their annual 15-day encampment. Lt. Col. Raymond E. Johnson was at the encampment in his role of instructor with the National Guard at Bethel, Alaska. His wife, Capt. Dorothy Johnson, a WAC reservist, attended the camp as Public Information Officer for the Guard units.

Sarah Dawson Graduates

■ AUGUSTA ARSENAL, GA. Miss Sarah J. Dawson, daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. H. Dawson, Jr., and Miss Elizabeth Freeman, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. E. Freeman have been graduated from Richmond Academy. Miss Dawson left immediately for the Summer session at Asheville-Biltmore College, Asheville, N. C.

Sfc. Benjamin H. Wood, won the Arsenal's annual Golf Tournament and is the 1954 Champion. Mr. Marvin LePrade was runner-up for the Championship.

DRONE GROUP WIVES ARE HOSTS

■ EGLIN AFB, FLA. The 3205th Drone Group wives were hostesses for the last meeting of the season of the Eglin Officers' Wives' Club. The election of club officers for the coming year was the important feature of the business meeting.

The newly elected officers are: Mrs. Frank P. Gallo, President, Mrs. Joseph W. Jorda, 1st Vice President, Mrs. Wm. D. O'Brien, 2d Vice President, Mrs. John T. Cravey, Secretary, Mrs. Charles D. Duncan, Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Edward F. Hoover, Jr., Treasurer, and Mrs. Charles W. Craven, Assistant Treasurer.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Walter B. Putnam, president. A new constitution was unanimously approved by the membership. Donations of $2,225 were voted for six worthy organizations, $380 of which was Thrift Shop profit.

A parting gift, a token expression of our deep appreciation for the tireless devotion to her responsibilities, was presented to Mrs. Putnam, as outgoing president, by Mrs. Patrick W. Timberlake. The gift was a silver Revere bowl, inscribed "Eglin Officers' Wives' Club, President 1953-54."

A salon style show was presented by the wives of the 3205th Drone Group wives during the luncheon and counting of ballots. The models, all Drone Group wives, were: Juanita Shelton, Nancy Derbin, Vonita Brand, Evelyn Schlenz, Phyllis Bruner, Bette Riddling, Aliene Walter, Wanda Gardner, Drex Coons, Herbie Gallavan, Wanda Jackett, Nanette Webster, and Anita Graham.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, USA-Ret, '79, whose long military career dates from service on San Juan Hill to presiding over the trial of Nazi saboteurs in 1942, died 4 June at Walter Reed Army Hospital after a long illness.

Resident of 1633 31st Street, N.W., Washington, D. C., the General had retired 31 Oct. 1938.

From 1939 to 1945, he was Chairman of the Foreign Policy Association, and from 1945 to 1949, Chairman of the Far Eastern Commission in Washington, D. C. He was also a member of the Roberts Board which flew to Pearl Harbor to investigate the bombing. He presided at the trial of Nazi saboteurs who landed on the East Coast in 1942.

General McCoy was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1897, and commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Cavalry. He served with the 8th U. S. Cavalry at Ft. Meade, S. D., until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, when he was transferred to the 10th U. S. Cavalry and participated in the Santiago-de Cuba campaign. He was wounded at San Juan Hill 1 July 1898.

In May 1900 he was detailed as Aide-de-Camp to Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, Military Governor of Cuba, and charged with general supervision of insular finances. He served three years in the Philippines with General Wood, participating in expeditions against hostile Moros and outlaws on the island of Mindanao, and holding offices in the civil government.

General McCoy returned to the States in 1906 to serve as Military Aide to President Theodore Roosevelt and as a member of the Peace Commission. He also attended the Army War College in Washington, D. C.

Detailed to the General Staff Corps in 1911, General McCoy served there for four years, then rejoined the Third Cavalry for duty on the Mexican border, and commanded troops during bandit uprisings. He acted as Chief of Staff of the Brownsville, Tex., district during mobilization of the National Guard on the border. In February 1917 he served as Military Attache at the American Embassy in Mexico City, Mex.

General McCoy was Director of the Army Transport Service and later Director General of Transportation at Tours, France, and during the summer of 1919 was a member of General Harbore's Military Mission to Armenia.

In 1921 he was a member of the Wood-Forbes Special Mission of Investigation to the Philippine Islands, afterwards serving as assistant to Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, Governor General of the Islands. He was in charge of American Relief activities in Japan following the earthquake in 1923, and returned to the States in 1925 for duty in the Bureau of Insular Affairs in Washington.

General McCoy was ordered to Nicaragua in 1927 as Director of Elections and from July 1928 to January 1929, served as Commander of the Fourth Corps Area, Atlanta, Ga. In 1932 he was appointed to the League of Nations Commission inquiring into the Manchurian situation. On 1 Feb. 1935 he assumed command of the Second Army and 6th Corps Area, headquartered in Chicago, Ill.

In 1936, General McCoy was assigned as Commanding General of Governor's Island, N. Y., where he served until his retirement in 1938.

Col. Otis K. Sadtler, USA-Ret.

Col. Otis K. Sadtler, USA-Ret., signal officer of Army Ground Forces during WW II, died at Doctor's Hospital, Washington, DC, on 5 June.

A native of Baltimore, Colonel Sadtler was graduated from West Point in 1913, where he was captain of the baseball team. He received the Purple Heart for wounds suffered during WW I, when he rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Colonel Sadtler was graduated from the War College, The Industrial College, the Command and General Staff School and the Signal School, and during the early 1920s served as military aide in the office of the Secretary of War, John W. Weeks.

When the United States entered WW II, he was serving as deputy signal officer, in charge of Army codes and ciphers. In 1942 he was assigned as signal officer of the Second Army, a job for which he received the Legion of Merit.

He returned to Washington, D. C., in 1944 as signal officer of the Army Ground Forces, and was one of the first to recognize the potentialities of ultra high frequency radio in combat communications. After the war and until his retirement in 1948, he was chief of the signal plans and operations division of the office of the chief signal officer.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Helen Hubner Sadtler, of 5124 Loughboro Rd., NW, Washington, D. C.; a brother, Herbert Sadtler, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas M. Green, both of Baltimore.

Burial was in the Arlington National Cemetery on 9 June.

Brig. Gen. Edward Ward Smith, USA-Ret.

Brig. Gen. Edward Ward Smith, USA-Ret., died 19 May at Walter Reed Army Hospital. Following services at Ft. Myer South Chapel, burial was held in Arlington National Cemetery.

A West Point graduate, General Smith saw service in Africa, Italy and France during WW II as Ordnance Officer of the Seventh Army. He commanded troops on one of the transports during the invasion of Southern France. He also organized and supervised the Ordnance supply and maintenance of the First French Army.

Following WW II, General Smith was deployed to Japan where he directed U. S. Ordnance activities on the mainland of Honshu. He retired from active duty October 1946 because of ill health.

He is survived by his widow, Margaret Bradshaw Smith, of 1451 Sheridan Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.; two daughters, a sister and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Mary Fithian Cutrer

Mrs. Mary Fithian Cutrer, widow of Col. Emile V. Cutrer, USA-Ret., was buried in Arlington Cemetery 15 June. She died 11 June at Abington, Pa., Hospital.

Colonel Cutrer, a 1908 West Point graduate, served in the American Expeditionary Force in Siberia at the end of WW I. He died four years ago.

Mrs. Cutrer is survived, among others, by a daughter, Mrs. William W. Jones, wife of Colonel Jones, of Elmendorf AFB, Alaska. Colonel Jones is the former commanding officer of Andrews AFB, Md. Also surviving are a son, two sisters and five grandchildren.

Miss Julia Hunt

Miss Julia Herrick Hunt, 87, daughter of Civil War Maj. Gen. Henry Jackson Hunt, died 7 June of a stroke in the Waverly Sanitarium, Washington, D. C.

A lifelong Washington resident, Miss Hunt was born at her parents' home at 1812 I Street N.W. Her father was chief of artillery of the Army of the Potomac during the Civil War and later was governor of Soldiers' Home. Her mother, Maria Craig Hunt, was the daughter of Maj. Gen. Henry Knox Craig, chief of Ordnance during the Civil War.

She was the aunt of Comdr. Richard Drum Hunt, USN, Henry Jackson Hunt, IV, Comdr. Conway Hunt, USNR, Frederick Drum Hunt and Mrs. Rosamond Hunt Price.

Capt. Paul C. Whitney, USC&GS-Ret.

Capt. Paul C. Whitney, USC&GS-Ret., died 9 June at Leonard, N. D., following a long illness.

For more than 14 years Captain Whitney was Chief of the Division of Tides and Currents in the Washington, D. C., office of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. He also served for four years as Chief of the Coast Pilot Branch, also in the Washington office. At the time of his retirement from active duty on 1 Sept. 1946 he was serving as Supervisor of the Bureau's Southeastern District Office, at Norfolk, Va., having held this assignment from 7 Sept. 1942.

Born in Washington, D. C., on 28 August 1882, Captain Whitney received his early education in the Washington schools and also attended George Washington University. He entered on duty with the Coast and Geodetic Survey on 17 Oct. 1902. One of his first assignments was magnetic observer on the first magnetic cruise in the Pacific Ocean under the auspices of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

During his long career in the Bureau, Captain Whitney served in various shipboard capacities on different surveying vessels of the Survey. He participated in and directed surveys along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States, Alaska and in the Philippine Islands. For three years he was in charge of the San Francisco Field Station. During WW I he served as lieutenant and lieutenant commander in the United States Navy and was attached to the Navy Operating Base at Norfolk, Va.

Captain Whitney made extensive contributions to the Coast Pilots which are published by the Coast and Geodetic Survey as important supplements to nautical charts. He served as author of various technical publications and articles dealing with tides and currents. He also presented papers before different scientific societies.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Adams of the Westchester Apartments, Washington, D. C.

Brig. Gen. Frederick A. Blesse, MC, USA-Ret.

Brig. Gen. Frederick A. Blesse, MC, USA-Ret., died of coronary thrombosis at his home in Richmond, Va., 4 June. Services were held in the South Post Chapel at Ft. Myer, 8 June. Burial followed in the Arlington National Cemetery.

During his 33 years as an Army medical officer, General Blesse served in many posts at home and abroad, including three years in the Philippines with Dwight D. Eisenhower who was then a lieutenant colonel and a member of the Military Advisers to the Philippine Commonwealth. General Blesse was responsible for organizing, equipping and training the Medical Service of the Philippine Army.

General Blesse was stationed in Washington, D. C. in 1925 as a student at the Army Medical School; in 1932 as Chief of the Training Division in the Office of the Surgeon General; as a student at the Army War College in 1935; in the G-4 Section of the War Department General Staff in 1940; and in the Office of the Chief of the Morale Branch in 1941 he was Chief of the Planning and Research Division. During this latter service he made his home in Spring Valley, Maryland.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lucy Kuhn Blesse, and five children: Maj. Frederick C. Blesse, an Air Force ace of the Korean conflict; James C. Blesse; Mrs. William C. Fite, II; Mrs. F. A. McCarthy; and Joan Elizabeth Blesse.

Col. Frederick M. Schellhammer

Burial services at Arlington National Cemetery were held for Col. Frederick M. Schellhammer, 45, USA-Ret., on Tuesday, 8 June.

Colonel Schellhammer died from a heart attack 4 June a few hours previous to his planned departure for France, where he was to attend ceremonies on the 5 and 6 June commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the D-Day Landings in Normandy and almost 10 years to the day after he had landed there by combat glider under heavy antiaircraft and ground fire.

During WW II, Colonel Schellhammer was General Matthew B. Ridgway's Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, in the 82d Airborne Division and in the XVIII Airborne Corps. He was one of the early pioneers in airborne operations and participated in the invasions of Sicily, Italy and France, and in the Battle of the Bulge and the airborne crossing of the Rhine River at Wesel. For his participation in the D-Day Landings in Normandy, he was cited for meritorious service and heroic achievement from 6 to 8 June 1944.

Colonel Schellhammer's military career was cut short because of an ailing heart, the seriousness of which caused him to be retired from the Army in October 1951. After his retirement, he took up residence at 166 Rocky Road, Larchmont, N. Y.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Christine Schellhammer; his father, Frederick J. Schellhammer; two children, Paul and Hel-

Heads New York Port

The appointment of Capt. Frank K. Johnson, USCG, Captain of the Port of Seattle, as Captain of the Port of New York is announced by RAdm. Louis B. Olsen.

Captain Johnson replaces Capt. William L. Maloney, USCG, who is slated to become Commanding Officer of the ice-breaker Northwind.

He began his military career with the U. S. Navy in April 1917, and was appointed an Ensign in the Coast Guard in August 1926.

Captain Johnson was Executive Officer of the cutter Taney which was at general quarters when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

The Taney, which shot down enemy carrier planes, is credited with saving the main power plant.

In February 1943, he was designated Chief of Staff of the 14th Coast Guard District, with offices in Honolulu, and remained until July 1945.

Captain Johnson was next assigned as Executive Officer, and later Commanding Officer of the Coast Guard-manned invasion transport Hunter Liggett. Subsequently, he commanded the USS General Weigel, another transport, and the cutter Acushnet.

Ex-POW Begins Surgery Residency At Brooke AH

Maj. Alexander Boysen, a former prisoner of war in Korea, has begun a three year residency in surgery at Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Major Boysen entered the Army after serving his internship at St. Francis' Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa. He was assigned to Madigan Army Hospital, Ft. Lewis, Wash., for a first year residency in clinical medicine. Later he was sent to Japan for 90 days to relieve medical officers whose military service had expired.

However, soon after he reported for duty in Yokohama, he was sent to Korea as Third Battalion surgeon of the 21st Regiment. He was captured by the enemy 12 July 1950 and remained a POW until 5 Sept. 1953 when he was repatriated. Since his return to duty, Major Boysen has been on the staff of Brooke AH's Out Patient Service.

LARGEST 'COPTER SHOW

The 10th Annual Forum of the American Helicopter Society in Washington 24-26 June will feature the largest 'copter exposition ever staged.

Thirty-eight booths will display exhibits of all major types of helicopters used by the various Services. In addition, a helicopter air show at the Old Polo Grounds in Washington will be held 26 June.

Tank Work Ends On Half a Billion Order

The last M47 medium tank called for in a contract awarded by Army Ordnance in 1950 to American Locomotive Company has rolled off the assembly line.

The occasion was observed by company officials and Lt. Col. F. H. Corgan, officer in charge of the Schenectady, N. Y., branch office of the Rochester Ordnance District.

The future of Alco's tank plant hasn't been decided yet. Company officials are negotiating with the Army to have the facility placed on a stand-by basis. If approved, Alco would mothball and store all its tank production equipment.

The dollar volume of the entire contract for the M47 medium tank, including related spare parts, amounts to over $513-million. In addition, the government has invested over $11-million in Alco's ordnance, production, modification and testing facilities at Schenectady.

Shift AF Contracts

Two defense contracts for aircraft parts and sub-assemblies have been transferred from Briggs Manufacturing Co. to Chrysler Corporation.

Production on the Air Force contracts has been carried on by Briggs as a subcontractor of the Boeing Airplane Co. in two plants which were included in Chrysler's purchase recently of all Briggs automotive body facilities. However, because of unresolved questions between Briggs and Boeing at the time of the transfer of plants and facilities, the aircraft work continued with Briggs in the two plants leased from Chrysler.

THE QUAC'S READY

A Quadratic Arc Computer—nicknamed "Quac"—capable of accurately programming over 20 separate flight operations simultaneously, has been developed for the Air Force by Northrop Aircraft, Inc.

The machine is a compact, high-performance computer measuring five feet in length, 40 inches in width and 33 inches in height. It is made up of 6,000 electronic parts, and can "think" at the rate of 5,000 calculations per second and store up 2,600 digits in its memory system.

Its programming performance is accomplished by simultaneously picking up flight data, performing mathematical computation, timing and recording navigational directions, remembering and sending out flight instructions over a long period of time.

El Salvador Buys Planes

Arrangements have been made for the sale of an undisclosed number of Beechcraft T-34 Mentor military trainers, equipped for gunnery and tactical training, to the government of El Salvador.

Similar craft have been purchased by Japan, Chile, Colombia and Canada. The armament version of the T-34 two-place primary basic trainer being delivered to El Salvador will be equipped with a .30 calibre machine gun or camera gun in each wing, and 100-pound bomb racks or rocket launchers under each wing.

Gen. White Leaves "PX" Post, Will Command Base

Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, USAF, first Air Force chief of the joint Army and Air Force Exchange Service, will complete his tour of duty on 1 July and will be assigned to command Sheppard AFB, Tex.

His successor is Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, former commander of the Army's Quartermaster center at Ft. Lee, Va.

General Peckham's deputy will be Col. Edward B. Gallant, USAF, who is completing a tour of duty at the Air Materiel Command Headquarters, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Present deputy is Col. Wilbur M. Skidmore, USA.

Forceful and aggressive in winning friends and support for the Exchange Service during his three years, General White was most familiar to exchange customers as the man who instituted "over-the-counter" dividends. This was General White's term for the more than $7,000,000 he saved exchange customers through price reductions and price absorptions during his tour.

In the spring of 1953, General White represented Service exchanges before the House Armed Services Committee Subcommittee Hearings on Exchanges which resulted in a Committee report praising exchange management and assuring military personnel continuation of their traditional PX privilege.

General White's broad exchange public relations program, which was also commended by the Armed Services Committee, aimed at creating a greater understanding for the Exchange Service particularly on the part of groups formerly hostile. The harmony which now exists between exchanges and large civilian retailer organizations is attributed to this program and to General White's personal liaison with these groups.

RECOMMEND INCREASED SUBMARINE TRAINING

Renewed emphasis on the Navy's overseas warfare program may be forthcoming as the result of a Senate Appropriations Committee recommendation.

In reporting out the 1955 appropriation bill, the Committee urged the Navy to step-up its training program for submariners.

Publicity given to the alleged Soviet submarine threat, coupled with the testimony of Navy officials about the U.S. program for both conventional and nuclear-powered submarines was "noted with interest" by the Committee.

The group "strongly" recommended "that the training of personnel be intensified to assure that sufficient skilled workers are available for a possible acceleration of the nuclear-powered program."

At present the Navy has one A-sub (the Nautilus) afloat but not yet commissioned, a second (the Sea Wolf) under construction, and a third in the planning stage.

Also recommended by the Appropriations Committee was a careful re-examination of submarine construction, overhaul and conversion plans "in both civilian and Government yards." The Secretary of the Navy was asked to consider the possibility of "enlarging" these programs.

Transportation Corps Sets Two New Tng. Courses

Col. E. C. R. Lasher, Commandant, The Transportation School, Ft. Eustis, Va., has announced the school's completion of two top-level projects which will affect and benefit transportation personnel throughout the nation.

"The first project," he stated, "is a 'package' course designed to facilitate training in motor pool management to be conducted at the Army and/or post level."

Present plans call for the course to be available to the field this summer.

The purpose of the course is to train selected officer, enlisted and civilian personnel in the management and operation of transportation motor pools; standardize procedures at motor pools; and promote increased efficiency and economy in the use of administrative vehicles.

The second new project unveiled by Colonel Lasher will facilitate the coordination of educational activities of the Transportation Corps.

"Under this plan," the colonel said, "The Transportation School will conduct 4-5 day conferences for personnel engaged in TC activities outside The Transportation School."

"Such outside activities," he emphasized, "include instructors at ROTC units, U. S. Army Reserve schools, and other service schools."

Work Begins On 9-Story Hospital At Ft. Knox

A recent storm which demolished part of the hospital at Ft. Benning, Ga., has been declared responsible—indirectly—for authorization of a nine-story, $7.8-million hospital at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new hospital were held earlier this month when Maj. Gen. George W. Armstrong, the Surgeon General of the Army, and Maj. Gen. John H. Collier, Commanding General of The Armored Center, scooped up the first spadefuls of earth.

In a speech afterward, General Armstrong recalled his vigorous campaign for construction of better Army hospitals. He said the Ft. Knox project had been blocked by the Bureau of Budget until the recent storm which "blew away" some of the "old wooden buildings" at the Ft. Benning hospital.

General Armstrong said he told his superiors that "I could no longer be responsible for what happened to patients hospitalized in such structures." Within 24 hours, he added, authorization for a new hospital had been granted.

3D ARMY WANTS SONG

A contest to procure an original Third Army Marching Song has been announced by Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling, Third Army Commander.

The competition, offering a $250 prize to the composer of any song which is officially adopted, is open to all Army personnel on active duty for more than 90 days. Entries will be submitted to installation Special Services Officers not later than 23 Aug., and forwarded to reach Third Army Headquarters not later than 30 Sept.

NAVY OPPOSES PROMOTION BILL

Vadm. James L. Holloway, Jr., Chief of Naval Personnel, "strongly" recommended to the House Armed Services Committee this week that a Senate-passed bill not be enacted.

The proposal (S 1063) requires the Secretary of the Navy to appoint a Navy-Marine Corps board to review the records of officers on the active and retired lists who failed to be selected during WW II, and to promote those who suffered an injustice.

As originally drafted, the measure provided only for the promotion of Commanders Edward K. Shanahan and Edward White Rawlins, USN-Ret. During its long legislative history, the bill previously has been approved by the Senate, reported out by the House Committee and stricken from the House Consent Calendar.

Admiral Holloway said, "An implication that any selection may be subject to revision years afterward would have a most unfortunate effect on the morale of our officer corps" and would burden Congress with "appeals from officers unwilling to accept the results of selection board action."

M/Sgt. Learnihan Assigned To UCLA ROTC UNIT

M/Sgt. Thomas Learnihan, jr., formerly attached to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, reported 17 June to the Army ROTC Unit of the University of California at Los Angeles.

A veteran of 27 years of Army service, Sergeant Learnihan has been on duty as Chief, Procurement and Accounting Section, Military Personnel Branch, of the Office of the Secretary of Defense since Sept. 1952. His previous assignments include those as Chief Clerk, Chief of Staff Section, Headquarters Army Ground Forces; Chief Clerk, Signal Section, Army Field Forces, Administrative Assistant to the Secretary, General Staff, Headquarters, European Command and Administrative Assistant to the Chief, Military Personnel and Internal Security Division, Office of the Chairman, Munitions Board.

During WWII, Sergeant Learnihan served with the 25th Infantry Division in the Pacific, and later as a commissioned officer while Adjutant of the 155th Infantry, 31st Infantry Division.

14-Story Apartment Bldg. Planned in Alaska

A 14-story apartment building to house families of servicemen at Whittier, Alaska, will be built by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The multi-family structure, which will contain 177 apartments of one, two or three bedrooms, and 39 bachelor quarters with all facilities, will take two years to build and cost $4-million, according to a Reuters dispatch.

The building will be the family counterpart of a recently-completed bachelor housing unit which was described as the largest and most complete housing structure ever erected by the Army Engineers. The new building will have a special roof with a heating device to help melt the tons of snow that fall each year. Steps in front of the building also will have the built-in snow-melting device.

Lt. Gen. Cates Heads USMC Retirement List Which Includes 58 Regular-Reserve Officers

Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, USMC, and Lt. Gen. Merwin H. Silverthorn, USMC, head a list of 58 Regular and Reserve Marine officers who are retiring after distinguished military careers.

Lt. Gen. Cates

Both generals will leave active service on 1 July. Also on the retirement list are five colonels, eight lieutenant colonels, 16 majors, seven captains, three 1st lieutenants, eight 2d lieutenants, and nine chief warrant officers.

General Cates, Commandant, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., will retire with the four-star rank he held as the 19th Commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps from January 1948 until January 1952.

A graduate of the Missouri Military Academy, he reported for active duty in the Marine Corps in June 1917, and sailed for France the following January. As a lieutenant in WW I, he participated in five major engagements.

During WW II, after commanding the 1st Marine Regiment in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi landings and the capture and defense of Guadalcanal, he fought as Commander of the 4th Marine Division in the Marianas operation, the Tinian campaign and the seizure of Iwo Jima.

General Cates is one of the few officers in any service who has commanded a platoon, a company, a battalion, a regiment, and a division in combat.

He is the holder of some 40 medals for valor and exceptional service.

The general is married to the former Jane McIlhenny, of Washington. They have a daughter, Ann Cates Hilbish, and a son, LCDr. Clifton B. Cates, jr, USN.

Retirement ceremonies for the distinguished general will be held at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., on 30 June.

General Silverthorn Ends Service

General Silverthorn enlisted in the Marine Corps on 27 April 1917 and participated in four major engagements in France during WW I.

During WW II, he was Chief of Staff of the First Marine Amphibious Corps, redesignated the Third Amphibious Corps, when it invaded and captured Guam. He was with the Third during the operations against the Japanese in the Southern Palau and Ryukyu Islands from August 1944 to June 1945.

In May 1949, he became Director of the Marine Corps Reserve. He was named Assistant to the Commandant in July 1950, and assumed his final post, Commanding General of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, in February 1952.

The General is married to Mrs. Marie A. Silverthorn. They have three sons, Maj. Merwin H., jr., USMC; Capt. Russell L., USMC; and Lt. Robert S., USMC.

Other Regular officers whose retirements are scheduled for the near future are listed below with dates of rank indicated. Names preceded by an asterisk denote that the officer has been placed on the retired list in the next higher grade than that in which he had been serving at the time of retirement by reason of having been specially commended for performance of duty in actual combat.

New Trieste CG

Maj. Gen. John A. Dabney, Southern Area Commander in Germany, was ordered this week to take command of U. S. troops in Trieste.

He relieves Maj. Gen. B. M. McFadyen, who will be medically evacuated to the United States. Army authorities said that General McFadyen had suffered a heart attack.

Aviation Writers Elect Journal Editor As Pres.

The Aviation Writers Association at its 16th annual convention at Miami Beach, Fla., last week elected LeRoy Whitman, Editor of the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL, as president for the ensuing year. He succeeds Ralph G. Platt, aviation editor of the Cleveland News.

The Association was organized in 1938 "to establish and maintain high standards of quality and veracity in gathering, writing, editing and disseminating aeronautical information."

Through the years, members of the Association have covered aviation activities in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. Many of its members are veterans of wartime service with air units of the Armed Forces.

David R. Wallin, aviation writer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, was elected first vice president; Ross Willmot, editor of Canadian Aviation, second vice president, and Vern Haughland, aviation editor of the Associated Press, third vice president. Ralph H. McClarren, consulting engineer of Philadelphia, was chosen as secretary, and Leslie V. Spencer, vice president of the Albert Woodley Co. of New York, was reelected treasurer. George F. McLaughlin of New York was reelected historian.

Col. Andrew Thomas McAnsh, Chief of the Army Section, U. S. Military Mission to Brazil from August 1951 until last March, has assumed command of the Psychological Warfare Center, Ft. Bragg, N. C.

He succeeded Col. Gordon Singles, who left the Center early in May for an assignment in Europe. In the interim, Col. Edson D. Raff served as acting commander.

Army Orders Off-Post Salute Return, Cites "Recognition and Mutual Respect"

The Army, after a six-year lapse, has ordered that officers and men revert, beginning 1 Sept., to "the traditional practice of saluting at all appropriate times."

This is announced by General Matthew B. Ridgway, Chief of Staff.

The practice of saluting off military reservations was discontinued in 1948 after having been placed in effect in 1942 following a 20-year suspension of the tradition.

The hand salute, described as the military equivalent of a civilian greeting in public, will be rendered by all Army personnel in uniform "at all times when they meet and recognize persons entitled to the salute, except in public conveyances such as trains and busses or public places such as theaters, or when a salute would be manifestly inappropriate or impractical," under terms of a revised Army Regulation (AR 600-25), the Army said.

The importance and traditional aspects of the hand salute will be emphasized to all Army personnel in conjunction with training programs, the Pentagon statement added.

The Army said the action is based "on the desirability of public demonstration by officers and men of the Army of the act of recognition and mutual respect which stems from the Revolutionary War."

Marine Corps Sets 1 Jan. OPA Objective, Reselections Required, Hundreds Affected

The Marine Corps has set 1 Jan. 1955 as the target date for putting all male officers under coverage of the Officer Promotion Act of 1947.

One of the major elements of the new program, now underway, involves the reselection of all male officers who have been temporarily promoted under the emergency Temporary Appointment and Promotion Act of 1941.

Officers who hold commissions under the Act of 1941 will be transferred to temporary commissioned officer status under the Officer Personnel Act of 1947. Those involved are officers whose permanent status is either enlisted, warrant officer, or commissioned warrant officer, and who were appointed to temporary commissioned status before 1 Jan. 1951.

These officers are all now serving in the grades of captain or below.

The transition of status will be accomplished by simultaneous reappointment of each officer to temporary commissioned status under the authority granted in the 1947 Law.

Marine Corps Headquarters emphasized that the transition to promotable status under the later law does not automatically confer permanent commissioned status on any officer who is so appointed.

The second adjustment concerns officers in all categories (Permanent Regular, Temporary, and Reserve), who are serving in a grade higher than the commissioned grade held by an appointment made under the 1947 Act, as the result of a temporary promotion made under the Act of 1941.

Officers in this class must undergo reselection for a statutory promotion to the grade in which they are now serving.

During this process, Marine Headquarters said, selection for promotion under the Officer Personnel Act will be on a more stringent and competitive basis than was the case under the 1941 Act.

Those who fail to be selected during the process will be reverted to the highest permanent or temporary commissioned status held under the 1947 Act.

Officers now occupying a temporary higher grade under the Temporary Appointment and Promotion Act of 1941 are as follows:

1. All lieutenant colonels who were promoted to that grade since October 1952, and whose date of rank is 22 Oct. 1952, or later. These officers are listed in the Combined Lineal List of Officers on Active Duty in the Marine Corps of 1

Jan. 1954, and are numbered 972, or higher.

2. All majors who were promoted to that grade since June 1952, and whose date of rank is 28 June 1952, or later. These majors are also listed in the lineal list, and are numbered in grade at 1111, or higher.

3. All captains who were promoted to that grade since Sept. 1951, and whose date of rank is 17 Sept. 1951, or later. They, too, are listed in the lineal list and are numbered 1462, or higher.

Adjustments in the Marine Corps' officer structure also include the following categories:

a. Limited duty officers who hold an advanced lineal precedence as a result of a temporary advancement in grade under the provisions of the 1941 Act will be considered for selection or reselection on the basis of permanently assigned lineal precedence. Those in the Limited Duty category who hold a temporary appointment under the 1941 Act more than one grade above their permanent grade will continue to serve in that grade while undergoing statutory selection under the 1947 Act.

b. Officers who have been transferred to the Regular Marine Corps since 1950, who were assessed a loss of precedence under the appropriate integration regulations, now holding a temporary advancement under the 1941 Act, will undergo selection or reselection on the basis of their permanent lineal position.

c. Women officers will continue to be promoted to first lieutenant and captain under the 1941 Act.

d. For the time being, male second lieutenants will continue to be promoted to the grade of first lieutenant under the provisions of the Officer Personnel Act after 18 months of satisfactory service in grade.

The pending adjustments do not affect temporary warrant officers who were appointed under the 1941 Act. If any changes are found necessary in this category, they will be made the subject of later instruction, Marine Headquarters said.

The reselection process will be conducted concurrently with new selections to the grades of lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

New selection zones, along with information concerning convening dates of selection boards, will be established by the Marine Corps when they are approved by the Secretary of the Navy.

PAY IS SOURCE OF SERVICE DISSATISFACTION

"The two greatest causes of Service dissatisfaction," according to Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah, are "instability of assignment (with its attendant hardships and interruptions of family life) and increasing inability to cope with increased living costs."

Dr. Hannah told the Senate Appropriations Committee that a recent Air Force-wide survey shows 50 per cent of the enlisted men and 30 per cent of the officers consider "increased pay" as "the most important" step in enhancing AF careers.

The Assistant Secretary said "increased pay" is also interpreted as 'decreased costs of living' through provision of compensatory benefits in lieu of pay."

Since the Services are unable to compete with wage scales provided by industry, he said, "the category of personnel with dependents is most effectively aided by improving compensatory benefits as this compensation directly reduces costs of living, but with a lesser budgetary impact."
